JACK ANDERSON SAYS:
Kleindienst Calls Off A Trial To Save Wallace Embarrassment

WHILE IT WAS being built, the 68-mile segment of I-55 being opened Wednesday was the longest continuous stretch of Interstate highway under construction in the nation. The section shown here is just south of Festus. U.S. Route 61 runs horizontaily across the picture.

THIS drawing of I-55 shows location of interchanges and grade separations along the 29 mile portion to be opened. Interchange locations represent areas where traffic may enter or leave the highway. The interchanges in Perry County are at Routes 51 and B. Cape Girardeau County will have interchanges at Routes KK and 61. Grade separation represents areas where access is provided over or under the Interstate but no facilities are available to enter or leave this highway.

Mc Govern Revises Tax, Welfare Plans

NEW YORK (AP) — Democratic presidential candidate George McGovern today proposed his second welfare and tax reform plan of the year — one that he said would assure an annual income for the poor, close tax loopholes for the rich and leave middle-income Americans generally unaffected.

The South Dakota senator unveiled his revised plan in a speech to the New York Society of Security Analysts, a Wall Street audience whose members would feel the brunt of McGovern's numerous tax reform proposals.

The Democratic candidate called for a federally guaranteed annual income of $4,000 for a family of four, expanding Social Security to cover thousands not now protected and guaranteeing one million public service jobs for the presently unemployed.

To pay for the roughtly $29billion-a-year program, McGovern outlined a series of tax reforms aimed at closing so-called loopholes on those who make money from investments in property, stock, bonds and the like. He also called for a $30 billion cut in military spending over the next three years.

"No American," McGovern said twice in the talk, "whose income comes from wages and salaries would pay one penny more in federal taxes than he does now."

McGovern made no specific mention of the $1,000-per-American income supplement plan he had previously proposed as an alternative to the present welfare system. He said, "We must resolve the question of income supplements for working people who, in spite of their labor, still have trouble making ends meet," adding that he had asked leading economists to work on the problem.

"Money made by money should be taxed at the same rate as money made by men," McGovern said. "Tax justice demands equal treatment for Americans who earn their living with a shovel or a slide rule, and Americans who live on stock market and property gains."

Chief among the senator's proposals was a plan to eliminate the tax preference on capital gains and have all longterm proceeds from stocks and other capital holdings taxed at the same rate as regular income.

McGovern also called for eliminating depletion allowances for oil, gas and other natural resources. He said "there is no allowance for the depletion of a worker's strength and years; at the least, there should not be an excessive allowance for the depletion of a corporation's mineral assets."

If these and other McGovern changes were written into the nation's tax laws, the senator said, the maximum tax rate on earned and unearned income could be reduced to 48 per cent from the current ceiling for individuals of 70 per cent.

"By closing loopholes and applying that rate to wealthy individuals," McGovern said, "we will end up with a net increase of about $22 billion in federal revenues."

Memphis Will Bus

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — The 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals today ordered implementation of a busing-desegregation plan involving nearly 14,000 Memphis city school pupils.

The court, in a 2-1 decision, affirmed "in its entirety" a busing order issued in April by Judge Robert M. McRae of U.S. District Court in Memphis.

In an article on Aug. 25, it was reported Frank Chance, 58, of East Prairie struck a tractor trailer from behind, causing a highway accident. The mishap, which occurred on Aug. 24, took place when the tractor-trailer rig overtook the Chance vehicle and struck it from behind.

Shots Fired Into P'ville Grocery

PORTAGEVILLE -- Corliss Hensley, owner of Hensley's Grocery at 701 North Delisle, reported to police six shots were fired into his store between 9 and 9:30 p.m. Saturday after the store was closed. Two large windows and a door glass were broken by bullets believed fired from a .22 calibre pistol. One of the bullets went through the back of a television.

No one was in the store, but a nearby resident reported she heard the noise and heard a car speeding off. No description was available of the vehicle.

Hensley was the victim of an armed robbery in December in which $900 in cash and food stamps were stolen. Two New Madrid men, Edward Lowery and Ronnie Long, later were charged with the robbery. They are serving sentences received in Scott County on armed robbery charges in connection with the theft on Dec. 30 of $250 from Robertson's Liquor Store on Highway 61, north of Sikeston.

Chamber Calls For Dues Assessment

NEW MADRID -- The Chamber of Commerce has decided a 50 per cent asessment of annual dues will be required immediately from the eight members if the organization is to continue normal operations.

The decision was made following a meeting of the general membership when it was learned the organization's financial condition was critical. The chamber maintains an office and employes a full time secretary.

In addition to the assessment, the chamber will concentrate on renewing lapsed memberships and enlisting new members. The membership drive will not only include businessmen in the city, but farmers and individuals interested in community betterment.

President F. M. Baird emphasized the prime function of the chamber is to help those who want to help themselves and to implement programs for community betterment.

Mrs. Mary Carolyn Dawson, who has been office secretary for more than two years, has resigned, effective Friday, to accept a position with Dr. Sam Hedgepeth. President Baird said the chamber will hire a replacement when sufficient applications are received.

McKee, Commander in Chief, North American Air Defense Command. Addressing the colorful states dinner Thursday night, which will conclude the Association's Conference activities will be the Ronald Reagan, Gov. of California.

Between Festus And Fruitland

I-55 Link Opens Wednesday

Interstate Route 55 -- southeast Missouri's "superhighway" -- will become virtually whole Wednesday with the dedication of a 68-mile segment of the road between Festus in Jefferson County and Fruitland in Cape Girardea County.

Ribbon cutting ceremonies for opening the section to traffic have been scheduled for 10:30 a.m. at Perryville. Gov. Warren E. Hearnes will be the speaker. The ceremonies will be at the I-55 Route 51 interchange. The public is invited.

Opening of the new section will link up previously completed portions of I-55 on the north and south, providing motorists with a dual lane divided highway stretching some 205 miles from St. Louis to near the Arkansas state line.

In addition to the governor, other city, state and county officials will participate in the ceremonies. Included are members of the Missouri's State Highway Commission and representatives from cities and towns in Jefferson, Ste. Genevieve, Perry and Cape Girardeau Counties, The ceremonies are being sponsored by the Perryville Chamber of Commerce. U.S. Senator Thomas Eagleton is also scheduled to attend.

When contracts were let three years ago, the 68-mile section to be dedicated became the longest continuous stretch of Interstate highway under construction in the nation.

The northern half of the section, from Festus to Brewer in Perry County, was opened to traffic late last year. The southern half, from Brewer to Fruitland, is being completed this week.

When the barricades come down Wednesday, only a small portion of the route will remain uncompleted between St. Louis and Memphis. This is a 13-mile segment from Hayti to four miles north of the Arkansas Line which is now under construction and expected to be completed by the fall of next year.

Of Missouri's planned 1,147-mile Interstate System, the I-55 opening will bring the state's total to 876 up to or near Interstate standards and in operation. An additional 22 miles are under contract and expected to be POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

People who try to attract attention rarely do.

OUR FORGOTTEN HEROES

While ultra-liberal Senators, newsmen and campus agitators decry the plight of draft-dodgers, deserters and other cowards, thousands of wounded American soldiers lay in forgotten hospitals. These men, in pain and far from home, receive no attention from left wingers who are busy trying to get "amnesty" for those who fled rather than fight for their country.

Prospect House Publishers, of Washington, D. C., decided to do something to let our lonely wounded heroes know that Americans care. From all the sympathetic amnesty publicity, one wonders if some Americans are not more concerned about our cowards than our heroes.

Prospect House has developed a Veterans Conservative Packs program to send pro-American reading material to our wounded servicemen. The books include The New Left Today, by Phillip Abbott Luce, which explains to the troops why their heroism is ignored and radical anti-Americanism publicized.

Another book is the story of the U.S.S. Pueblo, Bucher — My Story. This personal account shows that Communists, not American servicemen, are the world's real monsters. Barry Goldwater' Conscinece Of a Conservative gives wounded veterans a real understanding of what they fought for. With the media slanted against them, veterans need to know that most Americans do regard them as heroes.

Naturally, this Prospect House effort requires funds. Few limosine liberal millionaires will help. They are too busy fighting for an amnesty for those who would not fight for their country. Veterans Conservative Pack, 1825 Connecticut Ave. NW, Suite 322, Washington, D.C., 20009, needs your support for our heroes.

SIGN GAME MAKES TRAVELING FUN

Traveling over the holidays? If you are and will be taking the kids, perhaps you'd like to count symbols of safety. Made into a game, counting traffic signs and other signs of safety keeps the kids occupied and teaches them something at the same time.

Already filled with the excitement of the holiday season, children will find traveling a little more interesting if time passes quickly.

To play the game, make up a list of things to look for and assign certain point values to each symbol. Lower point values should go to the more common signs. Possible combinations include: Reflectorized lane markings (flat or raised) (2), Reinforced guard rails (1), Reflectorized markings on guard rails (2), Reflectorized delineators -- those bright guides along the edge of the roadway -- (2), and temporary lane markings (3).

Special signs to look for might be: Stop (1), Detour (2), Falling Rock Zone (3), Deer Crossing (2), Narrow Bridge (3), Pavement Narrows (1), No Passing Zone (1), Slow Vehicles Use Right Lane (2), and Truck Use Low Gears (2).

Slow moving vehicle signs (SMV) -- reflectorized triangles attached to the rear of tractors, wagons, earth movers, etc. -- are among the newer additions to the list of safety symbols. Since they are relatively new, give 4 points to an SMV sign.

A cousin to SMV signs are smaller red triangles used by truckers to warn other motorists of their stalled or disabled truck at the side of the road. These triangles rate 2 points.

Some simple rules to the game may be in order. First, each observed symbol must be seen by all participants. There will be no shouting out of symbols, and once used, a symbol can't be counted again until the next game.

Double points will be given when damaged symbols are observed and identified. These might include signs defaced by bullet holes, bent as the result of an accident, or hard to read because of dirt, rust or poor maintenance. A given time or mile limit will be placed on each game. Ties will be broken with a "sudden death" play-off -- the first observed symbol after time has run out wins the game.

Perhaps a trip grand champion can be announced and awards distributed at the first dinner meal after the conclusion of the trip. Good sportsmanship counts.

DO YOU REMEMBER WHEN?

A reader clipped the following item and suggested that it be reprinted in The Standard. Here it is:

DO YOU REMEMBER WHEN:

A farmer could plant what he wished.

The Supreme Court protected society rather than the criminals.

Taxes were a nuisance rather than a burden.

The ages were cared for by their children.

Foreign officials visited the White House without asking for money.

We entered a war to win it.

America conducted her foreign affairs without consulting the U.N.

Charity was a virtue instead of big business.

The doctor's first question was "Where does it hurt?" rather than "Do you have any insurance?"

U. S. Grant was the name of a president rather than a federal handout.

Giving aid to the enemy was treason. Now it's called foreign aid.

The churches preached religion instead of politics.

You were safe on the streets and in your home.

The news media presented truth instead of opinions and propaganda.

The motion pictures were wholesome family entertainment instead of violence and sex.

A policeman was a human being instead of a Fascist pig.

The high standard of living in America is based largely on the philosphy expressed 70 years ago by the legendary retailer, J. C. Penney.

When Mr. Penney started his first "Golden Rule" store in 1902, he operated on the theory that many sales at a low profit were better than few sales at higher profit.

The principle of retailing advocated by Mr. Penney was responsible for the development of most great retail stores, operating both locally and nationally. The same concept led Henry Ford to mass product an automobile that could be purchased by the low income consumer.

Mass production and mass consumption are interdependent. Neither would be possible without the other; they are complementary factors which, while both are active, lead to a progressively expanding economy.

However, a third force is necessary to keep the economic spiral in motion – that is public demand. When the basic wants of people are satiated they may discontinue buying even at low prices. When buying declines, the machinery of mass production becomes more expensive to operate, or it may discontinue all together.

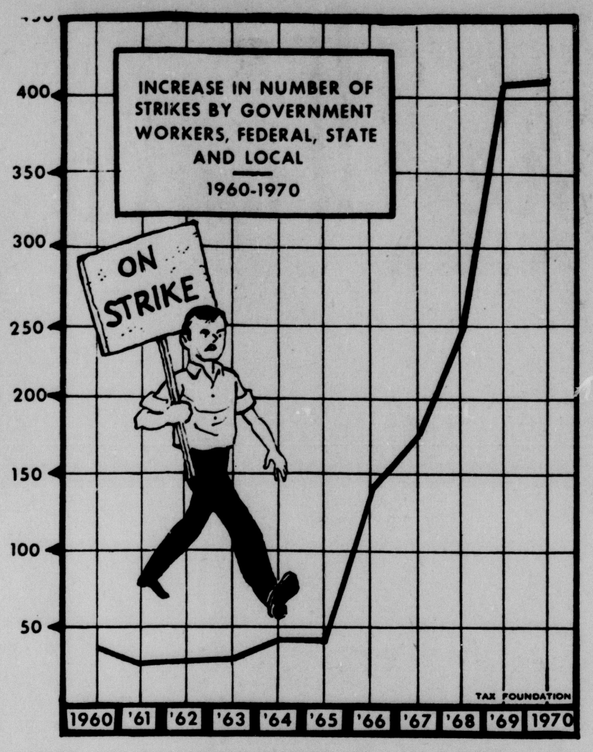

Mr. Penney recognized the importance of constantly stimulating new consumer demand, and he found local newspaper advertising to be the answer to need for new customers. It is not surprising that today Penney stores are among the largest and most consistent of newspaper advertisers.

According to Congressman H. R. Gross (R.-Iowa), the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission has to be one of the most mismanaged agencies in the federal government. Recent testimony before the House Appropriations Committee brought out, for example, that it prefers to hire people who have been active in civil rights movements, regardless of whether they have any ability to do the job. The testimony also revealed that the Equal Employment outfit doled out $2 million last year for which it can't show any results and the commission chairman couldn't recall a memorandum warning him that he had only a week before the end of the fiscal year in which to spend $406,000 or see it returned to the Treasury. He managed to spend $316,000 of it before the deadline, and he also found time to arrange for new uniforms for his personal chauffeur -- all at the taxpayers' expense, of course.

MILES CITY, MONT. (AP) — The cowboy is known as a range rider here in "the biggest little cow town on earth," and he is far from a vanished figure.

He may ride to work in a pickup truck or, on occasion, a helicopter. Instead of $30 or $40 a month and found, he may now draw $300 or more, plus his cookies and a place to sling his bedroll.

But he is still at home on the bacc on a horse, the work can be every bit as dangerous as it was in the frontier past, and his shop talk is as colorful as that of any American occupation.

Some of the range rider's picturesque terms have been collected in "Cowboy Slang," by Edgar R. Potter, Montana historian.

It is a language marked by variety, vivid expletives and exaggerated comparisons.

For example, the range rider had at least 40 different words to characterize his horse. He called it everything from "bangtail," "boneyard" and "knothead," to "usin' horse" and "wringtail."

And to him a horse could be any of 38 different colors. They included albino, blue roan, fleabitten grey, strawberry roan and zebra dun.

Saloon keepers called the stuff they pushed across the bars to cowboys whisky. What the cowboys called it, however, was "bug juice," "gut warmer," "nose paint," "red eye, "rotgut," "scamper juice," "snake poison or "tonsil varnish."

When flaring tempers ended in flaming guns, the victim wasn't simply killed. Someone "made wolf meat out of him," "put a window in his skull, "hung up his hide," "curled him up," or "dabbled in his gore." At the very least he "bit the dust" or someone "blowed out his lamp."

A range rider's vocabulary was up to the task of describing excellence in his craft. A cowhand adept at finding lost dogies could, it was said by his admirers, "find a fly in a currant pie," "hunt a whisper in a big wind," or "track a bear through running water or bees in a blizzard."

But withering scorn awaited the hapless unhandy cowhand whom no one wanted to partner with. He wasn't "fit to shoot at when yuh want to unload yore gun. He was "as useless as putting a milk bucket under a bull," oras "useless as barking at a knot hole."

Just as of yore, a range rider at the end of a weary day in the saddle today feels so weak he "can't lick his upper lip" and "so puny he has to lean against a post to spit. Often he still is as "homeless as a poker chip."

But the cowboy also still is a free man in an imprisoned time, for he "wears his pants pockets high off the ground" and "it would take a steeplejack to look him in the eye."

RUSSIAN AIR SUPERIORITY

With the demise of the U. S. supersonic transport program, a two-page advertisement in the publication, "Aviation Week", carries a timely portent of things to come. The ad says that the "Lunokhod" (the Soviet's moon vehicle) is not for sale, but that the TU-144 (the Soviet's SST) is. Moreover, states the Soviet advertisement, "Our supersonic transport airplane TU-144 is backed by the highest degree of advanced technology and a team of engineers unsurpassed in the world." An unrelated story in the same issue of Aviation Week reports that one reason U. S. helicopter sales are down is the "sophisticated marketing and financing arrangements being used by European and Soviet helicopter salesmen."

Whether one is for or against the development of an American SST, the fact of its rejection marked a retreat from leadership in air power. The U.S.S.R. now appears willing and able to assume the role of air superiority. What this means to the U.S. is anybody's guess.

"PATRIOTISM IS GOOD FOR THE SOUL AND FOR THE COUNTRY."

The February issue of the Reader's Digest included a small, detachable decal of the American flag, with the suggestion that readers display it in a window of their car. "Let us fly this flag proudly," said the brief editorial feature,"to show that we know what a privilege it is to be an American."

Stick-on flags were even then not uncommon in cars across the country, but the offer of additional flag decals seemed to touch a responsive chord deep in the national psyche. As we go to press, 89,770 separate orders have been received for 32,145,411 flag decals. More than 400 radio stations made favorable mention of the project, and some 300 newspapers treated it in news stories, editorials and columns. Equally heartening have been the spontaneous letters from individual readers. A brief sampling:

From Maryland——"I was one of the complacent, faceless Americans who do not wave the flag. Your feature has reminded me just how much we may lose if we don't stand up to be counted."

From Indiana——"The flag of our nation stands for everything that I hold dear. It represents life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness for all citizens. I fly my flag proudly. Thank you."

From Pennsylvania——"Funny how that little flag of yours has made me a friend of countless other unknown beings."

From a staff sergeant in Vietnam——"It helps me to know that the flag is being displayed on car windows back home."

From a Lieutenant Colonel, U. S. Army——"Recently I had the pleasure of escorting 120 Brazilian army officers on a tour of various U. S . cities—Throughout the tour we were greeted by a profusion of American flags, particularly on windows of cars. This had a profound effect on the Brazilian officers. News reports had led them to believe we were a land torn by distant dissent and protest. In a short time they began to say, 'Our reports are not true. Americans are proud of their country'...I merely want to say thank you for making my job easier and——even more—— thank you for reminding me that I, too, am proud to be an American."

"There is."

"And you support her?"

"Yes."

"Have you ever been legally married to her?"

"No, I haven't"

As the jurors scowled disapprovingly, the prosecutor announced:

"That's all, Mr. Z."

The defense counsel leaped to his feet.

"Just a moment, Mr. Z. Is the woman in question your mother?"

"She is."

Fish in Aquarium Help Assure Pure Water in Factory

A new, two-million dollar waste treatment plant of Hoffman-LaRoche, Inc., of Nutley, New Jersey, features a large aquarium where fish will live and breed in water receiving a continuous sample of treated waste, and serve as an exceedingly sensitive biological monitoring system.

This is but a part of the $4 million program assuring the quality of air and water. For example, according to V. D. Mattia, M. D., President and Chief Executive Officer, the 500-acre complex in Velvidere has a waste treatment facility that 98 per cent of BOD [biological oxygen demand] is removed from waste. The Delaware River Basin Commission requires 85 per cent.

Round-the-clock vigilance with sensitive, sophisticated electronic equipment monitors the quality of fumes, steam water and other effluents, the company spokesman said. He added, "Should any malfunction threaten, an alarm immediately alerts one of the operators who are in constant attendance; thus prompt action is taken before any problem arises."

NEVER SEEK THE UNEARNED

In the early days of our country, there lived a strange type of people. These people lived in New England and their way of life was different from ours today.

These early settlers were hardy individuals who had to live from day to day through their own merits, without help from the government and, of course, without modern conveniences. These conditions helped develop many fine characteristics within these early settlers. They, naturally, had to be brave, diligent and resourceful. But, it seems their foremost quality was that of independence.

Their independence was so strong, in some cases, that they wouldn't accept help from anyone. If you wanted to help one of your neighbors, you might ask him if he minded if you helped him.

How different from today! Today, we find a large number of people who will ask others for help in the most insignificant matters. A smaller, but sizable number of people will demand that you help them with money or anything else. Many people have their hands out for any and all kinds of government aid. There are even unions set up to secure more welfare for their members.

The people who ask for handouts for no services rendered are asking for the unearned, the undeserved. But there is still a vast number of our people who would die before they'd go on welfare. These are the people who must pull us through, the spiritual descendants of the early New England settlers. We must try to emulate their independence and never seek the unearned. HLH

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Rattling Skeletons:
Meany's Labor Bloc Plans To Make
McGovern's Defeat a Personal Objective

WASHINGTON – There's one specialist here who can whip up an instant lifetime chronicle of George McGovern, including a detailed inventory of all the skeletons in the Candidate's personal closet -- and that's labor's generalissimo, George Meany. But there's little doubt in labor's highest circles that the curmudgeon is ready to leave what he believes to be the Candidate's personal skeletons to continue to gather dust while he (Meany) rattles the political bones in public.

Meany may or may not have something. The AFL-CIO president still all powerful--always plays things close to his ample and beloved vests. However, at this moment one thing is certain. He plans to make this election campaign a personal issue between himself and the Dakotan. He intends to issue an "expanded White Paper" against McGovern in late September or early October.

It all depends on how soon McGovern's strategists make him the target. It they don't -- he'll unleash the White Paper anyway -- attacking the Democratic candidate on all fronts from McGovern's position on Israel to isolation, from amnesty and abortion to street action. Those who have seen Meany's notes say he plans to be tough–but impersonal. That is, "as impersonal as they will be with him."

This report on the Meany — McGovern feud is not merely the chronicling of a Presidential campaign no matter how rough it gets, and, as they say in the movement, brother it will get rough. Meany is at the throttle of a swift express train in history and he intends to switch tracks with full Amtrak speed. He's putting all his power and reputation and career -- even at 78 still viable – on the line.

If there is a President George McGovern, there will not be a President George Meany for very long. If the labor establishment doesn't smash McGovern, the Democrat, once in the White House, no doubt will have to wipe out the labor establishment's power. If McGovern would not, the young men and women would.

Thus Meany, at 79, would have to reassess his role at the AFL-CIO's 1973 convention. He would not, doughty though he is, it seems to insiders, want to spend the next four years battling the White House after he had made the Presidential election a personal issue.

So the dialectics have it that he must therefore throw in with Richard Nixon, True, they job together politically and Meany pulls his shots on the golf course enough not to beat the President of the U.S. too badly. There's a very fundamental point here if it is understood that what Meany wants above all else is to preserve the labor movement as he knows it. Not a movement of the left, not a movement of the middle class, not a movement of ideological marijuana, not one shifting towards the Social Democracy of his foreign friends who he needles so much --but a movement of highly paid skilled craftsmen who are middle-town America.

Meany has decided this cannot develop under the new politics, the new McGovernism. He and most of the truly powerful union chiefs around him have decided that -- at this moment anyway -- they can only survive as a force if Richard Nixon is President.

They are under assault by the black communities, the campus bread intellectual youth who see them as the top crust of the establishment, by what they call the "lettuce legions," for example. They snorted during the Democratic convention over the orgiastic uproar when Ted Kennedy (with an aside on what a great line he got off) drew thunderous ovations when he said "fellow lettuce boycotters." The delegates, who gave the AFL—CIO bloc even shorter shrift than was given the Democratic establishment, little knew that it was Meany, and some 2.5 million labor dollars, which had made possible not only Cesar Chavez and the United Farm Workers Union but the famed boycott itself.

And just as Meany and his colleagues have moved towards the Republican party, the Grand Old Party, goaded by Dick Nixon, moved towards the labor establishment. Thus it was on the President's directive that conservatives were dispatched to Miami Beach to contact other leading conservatives on the Republican convention platform committee to block proposals for the labor restrictions by Texas' Sen. Tower and what is known as the Labor Law Reform Group.

Labor law reform means everything from a conservative National Labor Relations Board and labor courts to compulsory arbitration, the elimination of the labor weapon known as coordinated bargaining, etc.

Thus Mr. Nixon had his party move towards a new majority party by moving closer to a new constituency -- namely the bulk of the labor movement as personalized by that cartoonists' delight – Meany. Thus the Grand Old Party will develop a new base – under the direction of the President and the most privy of privy councillors, Charles "Chuck" Colson.

Point now is, will the old party change the new constituents or vice versa? Will the common "enemy" – McGovern in '76 -- unite the Republican conservatives with labor's establishment, or will the new men of labor -- in Meany's image -- remake the Party?

These are historic trains. The winning of an election is a real smashing story. But the full meaning of such a victory is the real story-- in peace and war, on the land, in the factories. A Nixon victory could mean 12 years of Republicanism --most of it under Ted Agnew. A McGovern victory would mean a fire sale of establishments.

So Meany has decided to rattle some skeletons.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON -- To spare Alabama's Gov. George Wallace from the embarrassment of having his name dragged through a long trial, Attorney General Richard Kleindienst personally intervened last week to stop the prosecution of the ex-commandant of the Alabama Air National Guard.

Major General Reid Doster, the former guard commander, has been charged by a federal grand jury with squeezing illegal political donations out of guard officers. The indictment said he had turned over $1,700 of the illegally raised money to the 1970 gubernatorial campaign of George Wallace, whom Doster has called his "personal friend."

By the time the case was scheduled to be tried last week, federal prosecutor Ira Dement had lined up 40 witnesses to testify. The trail was expected to last weeks.

But on the day the trial was to begin, Dement suddenly dropped the charges. Doster agreed, in return, to resign his commission. Three other defendants, subordinates of Doster, were let off scot free.

We have now learned that the decision to call off the trial was made personally by Kleindienst. When my reporter Mark McIntyre demanded to know why the charges were dropped, a Justice Department spokesman blurted: "Because Governor Wallace was involved."

It wasn't the first time that the Nixon Administration suppressed a criminal action embarrassing to Wallace.

WALLACE PAYOFFS

Our stories four years ago about Wallace's political payoff system led to an investigation by the Internal Revenue Service. In a confidential summary of the case made available to us, the IRS charged that the Wallace law firm, then operated by George and his brother Gerald, has been used as a conduit for kickbacks from state contractors.

The IRS also concluded that Gerald Wallace had failed to report the full income that came to him through the firm in 1967 and 1968. His taxable income for the two years was given as $175,924.

Yet the federal tax case against Gerald Wallace was suddenly abandoned after a private conference between President Nixon and Governor Wallace last year aboard the presidential plane. Not long afterward, George Wallace announced his candidacy for President as a Democrat.

White House aides, discussing the political outlook with us later, said they had assurances Wallace would not run as an independent no matter what the outcome of the Democratic convention. They regarded this as a significant advantage for the President particularly in case of a close-fought election.

For in 1968, Wallace's third-party candidacy prevented Richard Nixon from carrying southern states that would clearly have chosen him over Hubert Humphrey had Wallace not been in the race.

Again this year, Wallace as a third-party candidate might have threatened the President's chances of winning the deep South and several border states.

Whether or not Nixon and Wallace actually made a deal aboard the presidential plane -- no embarrassing prosecutions in return for Wallace's promise not to run as an independent -- the results have been the same.

Footnote: General Doster told us he raised the money for Wallace on orders from Wallace's finance coordinator, Jimmy Faulkner. "I passed the hat because we had been asked to get up the money," Doster said. Faulkner admits only that he asked Doster for a " personal contribution." Both versions would have been embarassing to Wallace if the case had been tried. Wallace and Kleindienst refused to comment.

LAND MISUSE?

About a century ago, Congress turned over to the nation's railroads 150 Million acres of land, almost eight per cent of the total land in the country.

The condition was that the railroads were to sell of the land to small farmers and homesteaders finance the construction of new rail lines heading west.

If the new lines were not finished within a reasonable period, Congress ordered that the grants be forfeited and the land again become public property.

The Interior Department is now investigating charges that the Southern Pacific Railroad is still holding on to millions of acres of this land illegally.

The land, in Nevada and California, is allegedly being exploited for its minerals and developed for commercial and residential use. . If the charges are true, the illegal use of this land contributed significantly toward the $27 million which Southern Pacific made from its real estate holdings last year.

The charge was brought to the department's attention by the National Coalition for Land Reform and the California Coalition of Seasonal and Migrant Farm Workers.

They filed an administrative complaint with Interior Secretary Rogers Morton in June asking for an investigation. So far, they have received nothing but an acknowledgement that the request had been received.

A spokesman for the Bureau of Land Management told us, however, that the bureau had already begun looking into the matter. The Southern Pacific, of course, contends the land is no longer subject to the original grant requirements.

Pentagon Trying To End Draft Six Months Early

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon is aiming to stop draft inductions by December, about six months ahead of President Nixon's deadline for ending military conscription.

"Every effort will be made to minimize draft calls, if not avoid them entirely, between January and July, 1973, when the current induction authority expires," Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird pledged in a report to President Nixon.

The 51-page report was distributed by the California White House and the Pentagon Monday as Nixon announced in San clemente he will make good on a 1968 campaign promise to end the draft and rely entirely on volunteers to fill the armed forces.

His stated goal is July 1 of next year but Laird's report showed a zero draft may be reached half a year early.

Neither Nixon or Laird linked announcement of the report with the current presidential election but Laird agreed the statement could reap large benefits from the youth vote this November.

The Pentagon already this year has slashed planned inductions to a maximum of 50,000 young men—the lowest total in ten years and about 330,000 below the Vietnam war crest in 1966. Laird's report said "The dramatic decline in draft calls has been made possible by substantially reducing the size of the active force and by attracting more voluntary enlistees to military service."

U.S. military manpower now stands at slightly more than 2.3 million men. This is 1.2 million below the Vietnam war peak.

Both the President and Laird stressed achievement of the all volunteer force will require congressional enactment of a series of bills broadening authority to pay enlistment and re-enlistment bonuses for military skills in both the regular forces and the national guard and reserve, and bonus incentives designed to attract doctors to military careers.

The Army and Marine Corps have been trying a $1,500 enlistment bonus for men signing up for four-year hitches in ground combat units.

Laird reported increasing success with this pilot bonus plan. The Army, which was having trouble getting volunteers for the infantry, artillery and armor, signed up 5,400 men in June—about 400 more than average monthly needs.

Decide Against Rate Hike

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Postal Service says it won't be necessary to boost first class postal rates for the time being because of the attrition of postal service personnel.

Postmaster Gen. E. T. (Ted) Klassen Monday said an increase to raise $450 million was considered, with 85 per cent of the additional funds to be used for salaries.

But he said enough employes have quit or retired to make the increase unnecessary.

However, Klassen said it would be "foolhardy" to promise there would not be an increase at all next year. He said negotiations on new labor contracts are scheduled in July, and union leaders have proposed increasing the minimum first class postage rate to 10 cents to raise more revenue.

Scout Camp Certified In Tree Farm System

600 acres of woodlands owned by the Southeast Missouri Council, Boy Scouts of America, were enrolled today in the American Tree Farm System, a nationwide program of good forest-management which promotes the conservation and wise use of our nation's renewable timber resources.

"This Boy Scout- owned property we have recognized as an official Tree Farm today is not only growing repeated crops of wood for our nation's future needs, it is also providing improved wildlife habitat, protecting our watersheds, improving the quality of the environment, and providing recreational and educational opportunities for every Boy Scout in our local Council," according to Don Campbell, Forester with the Southern Forest Institute, Atlanta, Georgia.

"Forestry" and "Forest Management" are specific subjects for current merit badges in the Boy Scouts of America Merit Achievement Program. "Wildlife Management", "Conservation of Natural Resources", "Nature Study", and other scout merit badges reward accomplishments of Cubs, Scouts, and Explorers in learning about forests and the forest environment. BSA campgrounds and other Scout properties provide scouts with opportunities to practice their forestry skills.

To qualify for the American Tree Farm System, forest land must be privately owned; managed for the growth and harvest of repeated crops of timber; and protected from the threat of wildfire, insect and disease damage, and destructive grazing. Tree Farm management plans should include provisions for regeneration of new trees.

"Your fellow Tree Farmers throughout our country commend you on the outstanding efforts of your SOAR (Save Our American Resources) conservation program to provide the maximum benefits for the most people," according to Mr. Campbell.

"By joining the American Tree Farm System, the scouts and scout advisors of Southeast Missouri are sharing the conservation achievements of Tree Farmers throughout the nation who are helping meet our future demands for wood by managing their land to grow one of Nature's most useful and versatile renewable resources, trees," Mr. Campbell concluded.

Major Fire Damages Tan-Tar-A

OSAGE BEACH, Mo. (AP) — Fire early today damaged 10 guest rooms in the main lodge of Tan-Tar-A, a resort at the southwest edge of the main arm of the Lake of the Ozarks.

The fire also resulted in extensive water damage to additional rooms and to the threelevel restaraunt section of the lodge.

A woman guest suffered a broken ankle while evacuating the building and a fireman was treated for burns. No other injuries were reported.

Firemen from Osage Beach, Camdenton, Lake Ozark and Eldon battled the blaze, which broke out around 5 a.m. and was brought under control around 7 a.m.

There was no immediate damage estimate.

Firemen speculated the blaze may have started in a gas air conditioner in the top level of the eight-level section of the lodge.

Tan-Tar-A contains accommodations for 1,100 guests, but was not completely filled. Occupants of damaged rooms were relocated in other sections of the lodge.

The main lodge of the resort, regarded as one of the largest and most luxurious in Missouri, houses the lobby, registration desk, bowling alley, cocktail lounges, restaraunts and a few guest rooms.

Tan-Tar-A officials said the lodge was open for business and that restaraunt were serving breakfast, although floors were covered with water.

Firemen credited the lodge's sprinkler system with preventing the blaze from spreading.

Facilities at the resort, which is owned by Burton Duenke, St. Louis businessman, include indoor and outdoor swimming pools, Tennis courts, golf course and winter ski areas and ice skating rink.

Women Not Told

Used To Test Pregancy Drug; Daughters Could Get Vaginal Cancer

CHICAGO (AP) — A synthetic female hormone — recently associated with cancer — was given to 840 pregnant women in 1950-52 as part of a clinical experiment of which they were unaware.

The hormone is diethylstilbestrol, also called DES or stilbestrol.

In wholly unconnected tests two decades later, three Boston researchers found "a highly significant association" between DES and vaginal cancer among seven young girls whose mothers took the drug during their pregnancies. One girl died.

On Aug. 2, the Food and Drug Administration banned all production of DES for use in animal feeds because it turned up in the tissue of animals slaughtered for food. Researchers had also reported that DES caused cancer in some experimental animals.

At the time of the Chicago experiment, physicians had no reason to suspect DES of cancer-causing potential in the patients' children.

Dr. Charles McCartney, who participated in the experiment, said its purpose was to determine whether DES was really helpful in preventing complications of pregnancy, as was widely believed then. The answer from the experiment was negative, he said.

Record-keeping on the women involved now makes it possible to locate many of them, and any daughters who might be at risk. The daughters could have frequent checkups to detect any early symptoms of trouble. Or the followup could help determine whether such use of DES actually does create a cancer risk, the physician said.

The study was conducted at the University of Chicago's Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology among patients at Chicago's Lying-in Hospital from Sept. 28, 1950, through Nov. 20, 1952.

As each woman registered at the hospital's prenatal clinic during that period, she was automatically entered into the experiment.

There were 2,162 in all, but the group was subsequently reduced to 1,646. Of these, 840 were given DES. The others received placebos, or tablets containing no drugs.

Not even clinicians who attended the women knew which tables had DES because they were concealed in a code.

Describing the experiment at the time, the researchers said it was designed so "(1) that patients and staff should have no knowledge of the medication on trial; (2) that a similar group of patients should receive placebo medication which is not discernible from the medication on trial; and (3) that the two groups of patients must be treated simultaneously and as nearly alike as possible."

The chief author of the report was the late Dr. William J. Dieckmann, chairman of the Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology as well as chief of staff of the hospital. He died in 1957.

Dr. McCartney, who participated in the experiment, said Dr. Dieckmann urged the study because "thousands of women were taking stilbestrol and a great deal was written about the increased salvage rate in high-risk pregnancies, particularly with patients with diabetes and those with threatened abortions.

"Dr. Dieckmann was skeptical of the reports and designed an experiment to test the hypothesis. Our question was, 'Does it (DES) do any good?' Our answer was, 'No.'"

Dr. McCartney said the experiment was conducted in an era in which there was "no such thing as informed consent."

"At the time of the experiment, there was nothing known about the malignancy potential of this material," he said. "Indeed, this still has to be determined."

The job of tracking down the women involved in the experiment and their children has fallen to Dr. Frederick P. Zuspan, chairman of the Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology and chief of staff at Chicago Lying-in. Zuspan did not take part in the experiment.

Officials at Chicago Lying-in declined to answer questions about the experiment and directed all inquiries to Zuspan.

"I can answer no questions regarding the study or plans for a follow-up," Zuspan said.

However, a follow-up is in the works. A Chicago mother who was involved in the experiment said:

"I first learned of it when I received a letter from the university dated Aug. 8, 1972. I had never been told I was part of an experiment."

She does not know whether she received DES or the blank tablets.

Her daughter, who will be 21 in October, has had only one serious illness and that resulted from a ruptured appendix.

It was learned 1,600 letters had been sent over Zuspan's signature. The letter says:

"Dr. William Dieckmann and others conducted a study on the use of diethylstilbestrol (the estrogen female hormone) during pregnancy. This study was conducted while you were a patient in the Outpatient Department of Chicago Lying-in Hospital. Our records indicate that you participated in this important study.

"We are now routinely following up all offspring of participants. It would be greatly appreciated if you would give us your daughter's present address so that we may contact her ... "

The first indication there might be some association between DES-treated mothers and the occurrence of vaginal cancer in their daughters was contained in a report April 22, 1971, in the New England Journal of Medicine.

Drs. Arthur Herbst, Howard Ulfelder and David Poskanzer, working at Vincent Memorial Hospital, were mystified by seven cases of vaginal cancer which came to the hospital's attention during the period 196669. The patients' ages ranged from 15 to 22. This was considered rare. In the detective work that followed, the investigators sought a variety of explanations and discovered that in each case, the mother had been treated with DES during pregnancy.

The scientists then reported:

"There is a highly significant association between the treatment of the mothers with estrogen diethylstilbestrol during pregnancy and the subsequent development of adenocarcinoma of the vagina in their daughters."

They said, "The time of birth of these patients (1946 to 1951) coincides with the beginning of widespread use of estrogens in support of high-risk pregnancy....

"Although the chance of development of these tumors appears to be very small, the results of this study suggest that it is unwise to administer stilbestrol to women early in pregnancy."

The women who participated in the Chicago experiment were given doses of DES early in pregnancy and the dosage was increased regularly.

Diethylstilbestrol is still in use in a variety of brand name drugs. It is prescribed primarily for cancer of the prostate in men, and for menopausal symptoms in women, and in some cases for treatment of breast cancer in women. In some drugs it is combined with male hormones.

Women involved in the Chicago research were not the only ones being given DES during that period.

In 1951, two Boston obstetrician-gynecologists, Drs. O. W. Smith and G. van S. Smith, had recommended that increasing doses of diethylstilbestrol be routinely administered to all women during pregnancy to prevent or decrease hazards of late complications for mothers and babies.

It was this and other recommendations for DES that prompted Dieckmann's project.

U.N. Group Recommends Puerto Rican Freedom

SAN JUAN (AP) — The resolution by a U.N. committee that declared Puerto Rico has a right to independence marks the first major victory in a campaign by leftist separatists seeking abroad the support that has long eluded them at home.

Two separatist parties, the Puerto Rican independence Party and the Marxist-Castroist Puerto Rican Socialist Party, have found an eager ally in Cuba, always ready to discredit the the United States. They have also sent delegations to plead their case before the Marxist government of Chile and several Latin American legislators.

The separatists — known here as "independentistas — have never polled a substantial share of the vote. In the 1968 elections they fell short of 4 per cent. But that may be misleading because many who yearn for sovereignty cast their ballots for other parties because of economic or traditional reasons.

Ann Landers

Mom Refuses!

Ann Landers: I am not calling you "dear" because you are not dear to me. I think it was just rotten of you to bum-rap motorcycles. I was going to get one for my 16th birthday until you stuck your ugly nose into it. Now it's off. Any fool knows that a motorcycle is just as safe as a bike, which I've been riding since I was ten years old without an accident. Isn't it about time you retired? -- Mad In Yonkers

Dear Mad Yonk: Thanks for the love note. Here's another opinion:

Dear Ann Landers: Bless you for that well-timed column on the dangers of motorcycles. The following day the Monroe, Mich. Evening News printed a story which reported ten motorcycle fatalities over the weekend - nine were riding motorcycles or were passengers on a cycle. The tenth was a seven -year- old girl who was struck by one. -- N.W.of M.

Dear N. W.: Thanks for letting me know. Here's another:

Dear Ann: I don't want to be a killjoy, but there must be some way of taming the users of motorcycles. They are a menace not only to their riders but to everyone else on the highways. I shudder to see the numbers increase. --- J. H. B. (Boston)

Dear J. H. B.: Right you are. I welcome suggestions.

Dear Ann: As a member of the Medical profession I commend you for answering "NO" to the mother who asked whether to allow her daughter to ride with her boyfriend on a motorcycle.

Almost every physician has worked in a hospital emergency room at some time during his career. There he sees the motorcycle riders --- good ones, bad ones, cautious ones, careless ones, and quite frequently he sees the rider who was not at fault, but is nevertheless, maimed for life, or dead. I believe most physicians would agree that this sport is comparable to playing Russian roulette.

If only one tenth of the parents who read your column will take it to heart, you will have prevented thousands of injuries and preserved hundreds of young lives. --- Tampa M.D.

Dear Tampa: One of your colleagues, a fine dermatologist in San Francisco, did not write. He is still too heartsick to think about motorcycles. His only son, a brilliant young teenager, was killed on one two years ago. Thank you all for writing.

Dear Ann Landers: This is what happened the other evening and I want your opinion. A mother and her two small children were at the supper table. Guests were present. The younger child asked, "Mommy, can I have the strawberries on your shortcake? I love them so much." The mother replied, "No. I love them too, and I am going to eat them myself."

The child was crushed. I felt so sorry for him.

What do you think about such a mother? --- Chicago

Dear Chic: I think we need more mothers like that. Too many kids today have the idea they should have everything they see. AS often as not they don't even want what they ask for.

Parents who cater to the whims of their children because they believe it's the way to make kids happy -- or worse yet, who enjoy "sacrificing for the kids" -- learn later that they did the youngsters no favors. The selfish adults in our midst are those kids of yore who never learned how to give -- only to receive.

Is alcoholism ruining your life? Know the danger signals and what to do. Read the booklet, "Alcoholism -- Hope and Help," by Ann Landers. Enclose 35 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to this newspaper.

The Prayer from the Upper Room

No greater joy can I have than this, to hear that my children follow the truth. (III John 4, RSV)

PRAYER: Father, when you receive our prayers, You can tell what is troubling our minds. Perceive also in our petitions the hidden afftection for You that is implied by our praying at all. Amen.

The Case Of The Ghostly Brother-in-law

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

As an undertaker, Grover's disposition was even more rigid than his recently departed customers. Consequently, when the Widow Brown telephoned to say she would have to miss a payment on her husband's funeral, Grover promptly donned his black stovepipe hat and went to see her.

The only person he found at home, however, was the Widow Brown's sister Emma who had recently arrived from out of town.

After pounding his palm for payment to no avail, Grover retreated to his hearse parked outside. A few moments later he reappeared with the defunct body of Mr. Brown, which he deposited in an upright position on the living room couch. Then in a huff, he departed again.

The sudden reappearance of her deceased brother-in-law, as it developed, sitting on the living-room couch, proved more than poor Emma could take. And passing out as if she were the one who was dead, she later sued Grover for having assaulted her.

"He assaulted me with the lifeless body of my brother-in-law," she told the judge. "Had he actually thrown his corpse at me, it could not have frightened me more."

"There was no reason to be frightened," was the undertaker's answer. "The fact is, a girl's probably a lot safer with a dead man than a live one. After all, a corpse can't hurt anyone."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make Grover pay for assaulted frightened Emma?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that there can be no assault without a threat to do physical harm. In this case, concluded the judge, Grover in no way threatened Emma with physical injury. (Based upor a 1923 Michigan Supreme Court Decision)

Spitz Eyes Seven Golds

MUNICH (AP) — "I feel great!" Mark Spitz exulted. "I did my best tonight, I'll do my best tomorrow and the day after that—and the day after that."

If he does, the handsome, mustachioed California swimmer will be well on his way to garnering an unheard-of seven Olympic gold medals—and on his way to obliterating the memories of Mexico City.

He brought the United States its first two golds in the 20th Summer Games Monday, rocketing to an astounding triumph in the 200-meter men's butterfly, then anchoring the victorious 400-meter relay team.

It was also a day in which Air Force Capt. Micki King of Hermosa Beach, Calif., dazzled her way to a gold medal in the three-meter springboard diving, Vic Auer of North Hollywood, Calif., came within an eyelash of a gold in small bore riflery and the young Yank basketball team continued its winning ways.

Spitz can make it three in a row tonight with a victory in the 200-meter freestyle final. The women, meanwhile, still seeking to get out of the wake of Australian sensation Shane Gould, will be out to gain a gold in the 200-meter breaststroke.

"I remembered what happened in Mexico," said Spitz, who had brashly predicted he would personally win five golds, only to fail in all five attempts, winding up merely as one member of two winning relay teams in those games four years ago.

"I was a little nervous because of that," he said, recalling his thoughts as he stood on the starting block prior to the butterfly.

A scant two minutes later—a world record 2:00.70, to be exact—the 22-year-old Indiana University pre-dental graduate from Carmichael, Calif., had his first gold, leading a 1-2-3 sweep.

Gary Hall of Garden Grove, Calif., a surprisingly distant fifth in the early going, came on with a rush to win the silver medal, barely nosing out Robin Backhaus of Redlands, Calif.

Minutes after that, Spitz was back in the water, following Dave Edgar of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., John Murphy of Hinsdale, Ill., and Jerry Heidehreich of Dallas, the first three swimmers in the relay.

Again he churned along and again a world record was broken. This time the final clocking was 3:26.42, more than three full seconds ahead of the silver-winning Russian team and six in front of third-place East Germany.

"I've been diving for 18 years," said Miss King. "That's longer than the girl who came in second has been living."

Miss King, a 28-year-old Pontiac, Mich., native, virtually waltzed to her gold medal, beating 17-year-old Swedish high school student Ulrika Knape by almost 16 points. East Germany's Marina Janicke was third, about three points further back.

Auer, a 35-year-old technical and television writer, had a gold for nearly two hours. Then along came 26-year-old North Korean infantryman Li-Ho-jun to take it away from him.

"Naturally I was disappointed," said Auer, who had fired a world and Olympic record-tying 598 points out of a possible 600, only to have Li break them both with a 599 score. "For two hours I thought I won it and now it's a second place.

"But I'm still pleased," Auer added. "I think I represented my country well ... This is the greatest event in my life."

Miss Gould, the 15-year-old Aussie schoolgirl, put her fourth world record on the books in swimming to a gold in the women's 200-meter individual relay.

"Now I'm looking forward to the freestyles," she said, clutching her stuffed toy kangaroo after clocking 2:23.07, a time that broke a four-year mark set by America's Claudia Kolb.

Miss Gould beat East Germany's Kornelia Ender by about half a second, with Lynn Vidali of San Francisco, finishing less than a tenth of a second further back to take the bronze.

"It took three games for us to become a team in Mexico City, and it probably will be the same this time," U.S. Coach Hank Iba said of his young basketball team.

If that's the case, they'll be a team tonight—and they'll have to be in order to defeat Cuba, which beat the Yanks in last year's Pan-American Games.

The Americans, stretching their unbeaten Olympic record to 57 games, recorded their second Munich victory by beating Australia 81-55.

Sloppy ball-handling by the U.S. team enabled the Aussies to maintain a 19-19 tie in the opening minutes. Then the Yanks clamped on a zone defense and ran away to a 56-24 halftime lead.

Ed Ratleff of Long Beach, Calif., scored 18 points and Jim Brewer of Maywood, Ill., grabbed 18 rebounds to lead the Yanks.

The only other American medalist Monday was a surprising one, as 20-year-old Jamie McEwan of Silver Spring, Md., picked up the bronze in the Canadian singles segment of the canoe slalom.

He had been in eighth place after the first of his two runs in the sport all but owned by Europeans. East Germans won both the Canadian and men's kayak singles.

The American women gymnasts finished fourth as Russia won its first gold of the Games and Hungary's Imre Foeldi won the bantamweight weightlifting competition. The U.S. water polo team defeated Cuba 7-6 as Bruce Bradley of Long Beach, Calif., scored three goals and Russell Webb of Hermosa Beach, Calif., added two.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — The field was narrowed to 16 in the championship flight Monday in the World Seniors Golf Tourney at Broomoor Country Club, with defending champion Jude Poynter of Beverly Hills, Calif., and leading qualifier Howard Everitt of Tequesta, Fla., both victorious.

Poynter defeated Raymond Palmer of Grosse Ile, Mich., 2 and 1 and Everitt downed Finn Sorvik of Sweden 4 and 3.

BOSTON (AP) — Veteran forward Mike Walton reportedly has signed a new longterm contract with the Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League.

Walton was working on a two-year contract running through the ,1972-73 season. However, he renegotiated the agreement. The new contract reportedly fixes his salary for the first year. His pay will be negotiable after that.

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — Eddie Westfall, a star forward for the Boston Bruins for many years, has signed a three-year contract with the New York Islanders, a National Hockey League expansion club.

Westfall had one season to go on his old contract with the Bruins. Acquired by the Islanders in the expansion draft last June, he negotiated a new agreement. Terms were not disclosed.

Durham Pitches

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The San Francisco Giants scored twice without a hit, but the occasion was the biggest in baseball for slim St. Louis Cardinals rookie Dan Durham Monday night.

Durham, 23 and two years out of college, yielded only three singles in pitching the Cards to a 4-2 victory.

Authoring his first complete game, the former Western Kentucky star fanned eight to tie his high in seven starts and walked three in boosting his record to 2-6.

"I'd say this had to be more satisfying than the first one," said Durham, who stopped the Giants 3-1 in San Francisco with relief help Aug. 18.

"I was able to spot the ball better, and I was stronger. In the first inning I was nervous. I finally found my rhythm and was able to hit on the outside. The key to the victory was just mixing it up."

While still nervous, Durham walked Bobby Bonds leading off the game and fell quickly behind as Bonds went to second on a wild pitch and came around on two ground balls.

The 6-foot blond was touched for singles by Dave Rader and Dave Kingman leading off the second inning but worked out of the jam and afterward yielded only a single to Rader in the fourth.

Lou Brock, meanwhile, quickly earned a tie for St. Louis with his third homer leading off the first inning against Giants vet Juan Marichal, 5-15.

Marichal walked Bernie Carbo and Joe Torre with one out in the same inning, and Luis Melendez made it 3-1 with a double over third base.

Carbo's double to left-center and Ted Simmons' single made it 4-1 in the third, a margin that looked final until Rader led off the ninth with a sinking line drive to right field.

Carbo charged the drive but overran it and looked up as the ball sailed past his glove and rolled to the wall. Rader circled the bases on what was ruled a four-base error.

"I'd have to admit I'm surprised to be up here but pleased," said Durham, who was called up from Tulsa July 13 following loss of starter Scipio Spinks.

"I came out of Class A ball last year," he added. "That's quite a jump to Triple A, and I was really getting adjusted. But I think I do have the ability to compete."

Allen Wants Winner

BOSTON (AP) — Veteran slugger Dick Allen is bidding to become the first player in Chicago White sox history to win the triple crown, but it's structly a secondary objective for him.

"Triple crown, hell—the only thing I'm interested in is the club winning 95 games, which should be enough to win our division," Allen said Monday night before the White Sox beat the Red Sox 6-4 in a nationally televised baseball game.

The last player to win the Triple Crown was the Red Sox' Carl Yastrzemski in 1967, one year after Frank Robinson did it with Baltimore. Mickey Mantle performed the feat with the New York Yankees in 1956. Their teams won the AL pennant in those years.

"If I win the Triple Crown and we don't win, the Triple Crown will mean nothing," he added.

Allen played for Philadelphia, St. Louis and Los Angeles in the National League before being acquired by the White Sox after the 1971 season. He is leading the American League in batting (.317), homers (32) and runs batted in (92).

He appears a shoo-in to win the homer and RBI titles, but is locked in a dogfight for the batting championship.

"There are a lot of things more important than average," he said while foregoing batting practice in his customary fashion. "If I go 0-for-4 in a game, but I move two men up and they score and we win 2-0, I feel that's as important as getting hits.

"Too many ballplayers think only of themselves and their averages. A batting average is fine only if it produces runs. That's what the game is—getting more runs than the other guy."

Freshman Moves Up At Okla.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A freshman, Kerry Jackson, moved to the second string quarterback position in Oklahoma's powerful wishbone offense, as Coach Chuck Fairbanks announced a number of position changes Monday.

At Stillwater, Oklahoma State Coach Dave Smith said he was pleased with everything but execution after viewing films of the Cowboys' game-type scrimmage Saturday.

"We have a long way to fo fundamentally, but we're doing some things we can definitely correct," the rookie head coach said. "But for only three days in pads, we're satisfied."

Defending national champion Nebraska whipped through its next-to-last day of double drills Monday, and Coach Bob Devaney said another scrimmage might be held Wednesday.

"I think everyone is getting a little tired of the two-d-days," Devaney said.

He described Saturday's scrimmage as a "hard-hitting affair," but added the players still need work in many areas.

There was happiness at Kansas State when tight end Henry Childs and wide receiver John Tuttle both practiced full speed Monday for the first time this year. Childs had been suffering a groin injury and Tuttle broke a foot during the summer. Coach Vince Gibson spent the session correcting mistakes he noted in Saturday's scrimmage.

Missouri Coach Al Onofrio sent his tigers through a light two-hour practice Monday, and announced that right guard Chris Kirley was the only casualty from Saturday's scrimmage. The 6-4, 228-pound lineman will be out for at least a week.

Kansas Coach Don Fambrough described the Jayhawks' workout Monday as a "very tough practice." But Frambrough said he was pleased to see everyone practicing, even some who sustained minor injuries in Saturday's scrimmage.

The Iowa State Cyclones, meanwhile, resumed two-a-day practices Monday as temperatures soared.

"I was real pleased to see it get hot because we need the conditioning," said Coach Johnny Majors.

"We slowed down some today, but the heat, and the fact that this was only our second day in pads were the reasons for that."

Starting linebacker Ken Caratelli was withheld from contact because of an inflammation of a leg injury he suffered last year in the San Diego State game.

MUNICH (AP) — Pierre Ferri of France, president of the International Fencing Association was re-elected Monday for another four-year term. The election took place during the congress of the association.

New Orleans, La., is the location of the Basin Street immortalized in American jazz.

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals prided themselves in allowing National Football League opponents to pin their quarterbacks for losses only 19 times during the 1971 season.

The only problem was that the Cardinals, a title challenger in 1970, were able to nail other teams' quarterbacks only 20 times themselves and went on to a dismal 4—9—1 season.

"We want to improve our overall defense in terms of getting bigger plays," said Coach Bob Hollway.

"If our offense doesn't move the ball, we must be capable of turning a game in our favor with our defense."

A pass rush, then, looms as the top target for improvement with the Cardinals, although improved receiving and the bolstering of the running rate not far behind.

To fortify the front four, Hollaway has moved nine-season veteran Chuck Walker from end to tackle, where he joins Bob Rowe and Fred Heron, and has given a strong trial to 6-foot-6 rookie Martin Imhof as Walker's replacement at defensive right end.

Ron Yankowski, who started as a rookie last season, should be improved at his defensive left end position and Hollway has a much deeper assortment of linebackers than last year.

Opponents' passing produced more yards against a seasoned Cards defensive secondary in 1971 than in 1970 but scored fewer touchdowns despite numerous injuries, an adjustment to almost exclusively zone assignments and the presence of rookies Larry Willingham and Norm Thompson.

Eight-season veteran Miller Farr is back at left cornerback, Roger Wehrli returns at right corner and 34-year-old Larry Wilson has moved to left safety in place of departed Jerry Stovall to make the secondary the least of Hollway's worries.

Discouraged by dropped passes and a running attack that failed to produce an outside threat in 1971, Hollway traded away power running backs MacArthur Lane and Old Edwards and wide receivers John Gilliam and Dave Williams.

Get Right Diet Thru 4-H "Magic"

SPECIAL--If good nutrition helps build strong, healthy bodies, then some 655,000 young people are taking the challenge seriously.

They are the boys and girls participating in the national 4-H food nutrition program conducted by the Cooperative Extension Service and sponsored by General Foods Corporation.

Food can be fun, the 4-H'ers say. And to prove it, they use a "magic formula" to help them remember the proper amounts of meat, bread and cereals, fruits and vegetables and milk products they need each day. The magic formula is a set of four numbers – 4-4-3-2.

Using the basic four food groups, it reminds the beginning 4-H'er of his daily needs. It suggests at least four servings of breads and cereals; four servings of fruits and vegetables, three servings of milk or milk products and two servings from the meat group. Planning and preparing appetizing meals for themselves, their families and friends, adds fun and interest to the program.

In five units, the young nutrition buffs learn to prepare some of America's favorite dishes, quick and easy meals and foods with an international flavor. And in the fall of 1972, a unit "Teens Entertain" is expected to find welcome participants among older 4-H members as they plan and prepare for entertaining events with menus ranging from snacks to a luau.

The 4-H food nutrition program is supported by members' manuals and leaders' guides produced cooperatively by the Extension Service, General Foods and the National 4-H Service Committee. The books which include recipes, nutrition information, suggestions for buying, preparing and serving foods are available to those participating in the program.

An added bonus for 4-H members are the awards offered for the 12th year by General Foods Corporation. Four medals of honor are offered county winners. One state winner receives an expense-paid trip to the National 4-H Congress in Chicago, Nov. 26-30, and six national winners receive $700 scholarships at that event.

For information and opportunities in the 4-H food nutrition program, contact the county extension office.

Recommend Auto Safety Changes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Transportation Safety Board made a half-dozen safety recommendations today as the result of a 13-vehicle collision in which eight persons were killed and 11 injured in California last year.

The board urged better truck brakes, more secure auto doors, new fuel tank standards, improved no-spark electrical circuits and legal action against motorists who stop on the highway to change a flat tire.

The accident occurred northwest of ventura, Calif., on Aug. 18, 1971. It started with a relatively minor collision between a tractor-semitrailer truck and a flatbed truck.

up to a full Interstate standards and in operation by December of this year; 73 miles are under contract, but not expected to be in operation this year; and 47 miles are now dual lane divided facilities but not up to full Interstate standards. Locations have been approved for the final 129 miles.

The portion of I-55 to be opened represents $29 million in construction costs. The work was divided among three prime contractors. The W. J. Menefee Construction Company of Sedalia constructed a six mile portion from Brewer south to near Route 51 in Perry County at a cost of &7 million. R. B. Potashnick of Cape Girardeau constructed 15.5 miles from Route 51 in Perry County to near Route E in Cape Girardeau County at a cost of $15 million. The Bernard McMenamy Contractors, Inc. built the 7.5 mile section from Route E to Route 61 south of Fruitland at a total cost of $7 million.

This work incorporates the latest safety design features including a 30' safety zone adjacent to the pavement, breakaway sign posts and buried guard rail ends. Also being built, but incomplete at this time, are two rest area facilities south of Route E in Cape Girardeau County.

Try To Prevent Food Shortage

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet authorities have started a crash program to assure enough food for Moscow this winter.

Following a shortfall in the grain harvest, local newspapers confirmed today that searing heat had reduced the potato crop in an area of 40,000 square miles around Moscow.

Potatoes and bread are staples of the Russian diet.

One of the complicating factors was the shortage of storage space in the Moscow area.

WHILE IT WAS being built, the 68-mile segment of I-55 being opened Wednesday was the longest continuous stretch of Interstate highway under construction in the nation. The section shown here is just south of Festus. U.S. Route 61 runs horizontaily across the picture.

THIS drawing of I-55 shows location of interchanges and grade separations along the 29 mile portion to be opened. Interchange locations represent areas where traffic may enter or leave the highway. The interchanges in Perry County are at Routes 51 and B. Cape Girardeau County will have interchanges at Routes KK and 61. Grade separation represents areas where access is provided over or under the Interstate but no facilities are available to enter or leave this highway.

Mc Govern Revises Tax, Welfare Plans

NEW YORK (AP) — Democratic presidential candidate George McGovern today proposed his second welfare and tax reform plan of the year — one that he said would assure an annual income for the poor, close tax loopholes for the rich and leave middle-income Americans generally unaffected.

The South Dakota senator unveiled his revised plan in a speech to the New York Society of Security Analysts, a Wall Street audience whose members would feel the brunt of McGovern's numerous tax reform proposals.

The Democratic candidate called for a federally guaranteed annual income of $4,000 for a family of four, expanding Social Security to cover thousands not now protected and guaranteeing one million public service jobs for the presently unemployed.

To pay for the roughtly $29billion-a-year program, McGovern outlined a series of tax reforms aimed at closing so-called loopholes on those who make money from investments in property, stock, bonds and the like. He also called for a $30 billion cut in military spending over the next three years.

"No American," McGovern said twice in the talk, "whose income comes from wages and salaries would pay one penny more in federal taxes than he does now."

McGovern made no specific mention of the $1,000-per-American income supplement plan he had previously proposed as an alternative to the present welfare system. He said, "We must resolve the question of income supplements for working people who, in spite of their labor, still have trouble making ends meet," adding that he had asked leading economists to work on the problem.

"Money made by money should be taxed at the same rate as money made by men," McGovern said. "Tax justice demands equal treatment for Americans who earn their living with a shovel or a slide rule, and Americans who live on stock market and property gains."

Chief among the senator's proposals was a plan to eliminate the tax preference on capital gains and have all longterm proceeds from stocks and other capital holdings taxed at the same rate as regular income.

McGovern also called for eliminating depletion allowances for oil, gas and other natural resources. He said "there is no allowance for the depletion of a worker's strength and years; at the least, there should not be an excessive allowance for the depletion of a corporation's mineral assets."

If these and other McGovern changes were written into the nation's tax laws, the senator said, the maximum tax rate on earned and unearned income could be reduced to 48 per cent from the current ceiling for individuals of 70 per cent.

"By closing loopholes and applying that rate to wealthy individuals," McGovern said, "we will end up with a net increase of about $22 billion in federal revenues."

Between Festus And Fruitland

I-55 Link Opens Wednesday

Interstate Route 55 -- southeast Missouri's "superhighway" -- will become virtually whole Wednesday with the dedication of a 68-mile segment of the road between Festus in Jefferson County and Fruitland in Cape Girardea County.

Ribbon cutting ceremonies for opening the section to traffic have been scheduled for 10:30 a.m. at Perryville. Gov. Warren E. Hearnes will be the speaker. The ceremonies will be at the I-55 Route 51 interchange. The public is invited.

Opening of the new section will link up previously completed portions of I-55 on the north and south, providing motorists with a dual lane divided highway stretching some 205 miles from St. Louis to near the Arkansas state line.

In addition to the governor, other city, state and county officials will participate in the ceremonies. Included are members of the Missouri's State Highway Commission and representatives from cities and towns in Jefferson, Ste. Genevieve, Perry and Cape Girardeau Counties, The ceremonies are being sponsored by the Perryville Chamber of Commerce. U.S. Senator Thomas Eagleton is also scheduled to attend.

When contracts were let three years ago, the 68-mile section to be dedicated became the longest continuous stretch of Interstate highway under construction in the nation.

The northern half of the section, from Festus to Brewer in Perry County, was opened to traffic late last year. The southern half, from Brewer to Fruitland, is being completed this week.

When the barricades come down Wednesday, only a small portion of the route will remain uncompleted between St. Louis and Memphis. This is a 13-mile segment from Hayti to four miles north of the Arkansas Line which is now under construction and expected to be completed by the fall of next year.

Of Missouri's planned 1,147-mile Interstate System, the I-55 opening will bring the state's total to 876 up to or near Interstate standards and in operation. An additional 22 miles are under contract and expected to be

Shots Fired Into P'ville Grocery

PORTAGEVILLE -- Corliss Hensley, owner of Hensley's Grocery at 701 North Delisle, reported to police six shots were fired into his store between 9 and 9:30 p.m. Saturday after the store was closed. Chamber Calls For Dues Assessment

NEW MADRID -- The Chamber of Commerce has decided a 50 per cent asessment of annual dues will be required immediately from the eight members if the organization is to continue normal operations.

The decision was made following a meeting of the general membership when it was learned the organization's financial condition was critical. The chamber maintains an office and employes a full time secretary.

In addition to the assessment, the chamber will concentrate on renewing lapsed memberships and enlisting new members. The membership drive will not only include businessmen in the city, but farmers and individuals interested in community betterment.

President F. M. Baird emphasized the prime function of the chamber is to help those who want to help themselves and to implement programs for community betterment.

Mrs. Mary Carolyn Dawson, who has been office secretary for more than two years, has resigned, effective Friday, to accept a position with Dr. Sam Hedgepeth. President Baird said the chamber will hire a replacement when sufficient applications are received.

OUR FORGOTTEN HEROES

While ultra-liberal Senators, newsmen and campus agitators decry the plight of draft-dodgers, deserters and other cowards, thousands of wounded American soldiers lay in forgotten hospitals. These men, in pain and far from home, receive no attention from left wingers who are busy trying to get "amnesty" for those who fled rather than fight for their country.

Prospect House Publishers, of Washington, D. C., decided to do something to let our lonely wounded heroes know that Americans care. From all the sympathetic amnesty publicity, one wonders if some Americans are not more concerned about our cowards than our heroes.

Prospect House has developed a Veterans Conservative Packs program to send pro-American reading material to our wounded servicemen. The books include The New Left Today, by Phillip Abbott Luce, which explains to the troops why their heroism is ignored and radical anti-Americanism publicized.

Another book is the story of the U.S.S. Pueblo, Bucher — My Story. This personal account shows that Communists, not American servicemen, are the world's real monsters. Barry Goldwater' Conscinece Of a Conservative gives wounded veterans a real understanding of what they fought for. With the media slanted against them, veterans need to know that most Americans do regard them as heroes.

Naturally, this Prospect House effort requires funds. Few limosine liberal millionaires will help. They are too busy fighting for an amnesty for those who would not fight for their country. Veterans Conservative Pack, 1825 Connecticut Ave. NW, Suite 322, Washington, D.C., 20009, needs your support for our heroes.

SIGN GAME MAKES TRAVELING FUN

Traveling over the holidays? If you are and will be taking the kids, perhaps you'd like to count symbols of safety. Made into a game, counting traffic signs and other signs of safety keeps the kids occupied and teaches them something at the same time.

Already filled with the excitement of the holiday season, children will find traveling a little more interesting if time passes quickly.

To play the game, make up a list of things to look for and assign certain point values to each symbol. Lower point values should go to the more common signs. Possible combinations include: Reflectorized lane markings (flat or raised) (2), Reinforced guard rails (1), Reflectorized markings on guard rails (2), Reflectorized delineators -- those bright guides along the edge of the roadway -- (2), and temporary lane markings (3).

Special signs to look for might be: Stop (1), Detour (2), Falling Rock Zone (3), Deer Crossing (2), Narrow Bridge (3), Pavement Narrows (1), No Passing Zone (1), Slow Vehicles Use Right Lane (2), and Truck Use Low Gears (2).

Slow moving vehicle signs (SMV) -- reflectorized triangles attached to the rear of tractors, wagons, earth movers, etc. -- are among the newer additions to the list of safety symbols. Since they are relatively new, give 4 points to an SMV sign.

A cousin to SMV signs are smaller red triangles used by truckers to warn other motorists of their stalled or disabled truck at the side of the road. These triangles rate 2 points.

Some simple rules to the game may be in order. First, each observed symbol must be seen by all participants. There will be no shouting out of symbols, and once used, a symbol can't be counted again until the next game.

Double points will be given when damaged symbols are observed and identified. These might include signs defaced by bullet holes, bent as the result of an accident, or hard to read because of dirt, rust or poor maintenance. A given time or mile limit will be placed on each game. Ties will be broken with a "sudden death" play-off -- the first observed symbol after time has run out wins the game.

Perhaps a trip grand champion can be announced and awards distributed at the first dinner meal after the conclusion of the trip. Good sportsmanship counts.

DO YOU REMEMBER WHEN?

A reader clipped the following item and suggested that it be reprinted in The Standard. Here it is:

DO YOU REMEMBER WHEN:

Attending college was a privileged rather than a right.

A farmer could plant what he wished.

The Supreme Court protected society rather than the criminals.

Taxes were a nuisance rather than a burden.

The ages were cared for by their children.

Foreign officials visited the White House without asking for money.

We entered a war to win it.

A life sentence didn't mean paroles in 10 years.

Our flag was respected at home and abroad.

America conducted her foreign affairs without consulting the U.N.

A father went on welfare only out of desperation and got off as soon as possible.

Charity was a virtue instead of big business.

The doctor's first question was "Where does it hurt?" rather than "Do you have any insurance?"

U. S. Grant was the name of a president rather than a federal handout.

Giving aid to the enemy was treason. Now it's called foreign aid.

The churches preached religion instead of politics.

You were safe on the streets and in your home.

The news media presented truth instead of opinions and propaganda.

The motion pictures were wholesome family entertainment instead of violence and sex.

A policeman was a human being instead of a Fascist pig.

The three R's were reading, 'riting and 'rithmetic instead of robbery, rape and riots.

A radical had to have a soap box to reach 40 people. Now the news media provides him a microphone to reach millions.

The country was run by Americans instead of a group of aliens.

The high standard of living in America is based largely on the philosphy expressed 70 years ago by the legendary retailer, J. C. Penney.

When Mr. Penney started his first "Golden Rule" store in 1902, he operated on the theory that many sales at a low profit were better than few sales at higher profit.

The principle of retailing advocated by Mr. Penney was responsible for the development of most great retail stores, operating both locally and nationally. The same concept led Henry Ford to mass product an automobile that could be purchased by the low income consumer.

Mass production and mass consumption are interdependent. Neither would be possible without the other; they are complementary factors which, while both are active, lead to a progressively expanding economy.

However, a third force is necessary to keep the economic spiral in motion -- that is public demand. When the basic wants of people are satiated they may discontinue buying even at low prices. When buying declines, the machinery of mass production becomes more expensive to operate, or it may discontinue all together.

Mr. Penney recognized the importance of constantly stimulating new consumer demand, and he found local newspaper advertising to be the answer to need for new customers. It is not surprising that today Penney stores are among the largest and most consistent of newspaper advertisers.

According to Congressman H. R. Gross (R.-Iowa), the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission has to be one of the most mismanaged agencies in the federal government. Recent testimony before the House Appropriations Committee brought out, for example, that it prefers to hire people who have been active in civil rights movements, regardless of whether they have any ability to do the job. The testimony also revealed that the Equal Employment outfit doled out $2 million last year for which it can't show any results and the commission chairman couldn't recall a memorandum warning him that he had only a week before the end of the fiscal year in which to spend $406,000 or see it returned to the Treasury. He managed to spend $316,000 of it before the deadline, and he also found time to arrange for new uniforms for his personal chauffeur -- all at the taxpayers' expense, of course.

How would you like to be a bride in a strange town and have people look critically at you?

Hal Boyle

MILES CITY, MONT. (AP) — The cowboy is known as a range rider here in "the biggest little cow town on earth," and he is far from a vanished figure.

He may ride to work in a pickup truck or, on occasion, a helicopter. Instead of $30 or $40 a month and found, he may now draw $300 or more, plus his cookies and a place to sling his bedroll.

But he is still at home on the bacc on a horse, the work can be every bit as dangerous as it was in the frontier past, and his shop talk is as colorful as that of any American occupation.

Some of the range rider's picturesque terms have been collected in "Cowboy Slang," by Edgar R. Potter, Montana historian.

It is a language marked by variety, vivid expletives and exaggerated comparisons.

For example, the range rider had at least 40 different words to characterize his horse. He called it everything from "bangtail," "boneyard" and "knothead," to "usin' horse" and "wringtail."

And to him a horse could be any of 38 different colors. They included albino, blue roan, fleabitten grey, strawberry roan and zebra dun.

Saloon keepers called the stuff they pushed across the bars to cowboys whisky. What the cowboys called it, however, was "bug juice," "gut warmer," "nose paint," "red eye, "rotgut," "scamper juice," "snake poison or "tonsil varnish."

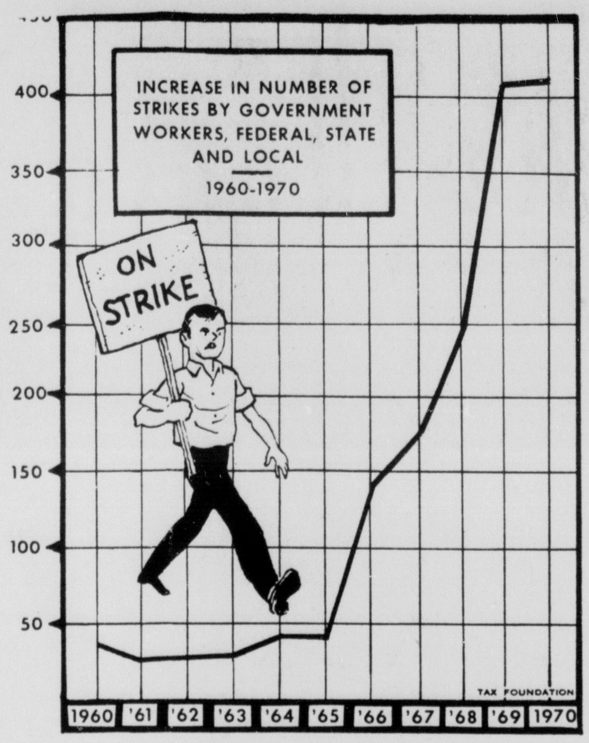

When flaring tempers ended in flaming guns, the victim wasn't simply killed. Someone "made wolf meat out of him," "put a window in his skull, "hung up his hide," "curled him up," or "dabbled in his gore." At the very least he "bit the dust" or someone "blowed out his lamp."

A range rider's vocabulary was up to the task of describing excellence in his craft. A cowhand adept at finding lost dogies could, it was said by his admirers, "find a fly in a currant pie," "hunt a whisper in a big wind," or "track a bear through running water or bees in a blizzard."

But withering scorn awaited the hapless unhandy cowhand whom no one wanted to partner with. He wasn't "fit to shoot at when yuh want to unload yore gun. He was "as useless as putting a milk bucket under a bull," oras "useless as barking at a knot hole."

Just as of yore, a range rider at the end of a weary day in the saddle today feels so weak he "can't lick his upper lip" and "so puny he has to lean against a post to spit. Often he still is as "homeless as a poker chip."

But the cowboy also still is a free man in an imprisoned time, for he "wears his pants pockets high off the ground" and "it would take a steeplejack to look him in the eye."

RUSSIAN AIR SUPERIORITY

With the demise of the U. S. supersonic transport program, a two-page advertisement in the publication, "Aviation Week", carries a timely portent of things to come. The ad says that the "Lunokhod" (the Soviet's moon vehicle) is not for sale, but that the TU-144 (the Soviet's SST) is. Moreover, states the Soviet advertisement, "Our supersonic transport airplane TU-144 is backed by the highest degree of advanced technology and a team of engineers unsurpassed in the world." An unrelated story in the same issue of Aviation Week reports that one reason U. S. helicopter sales are down is the "sophisticated marketing and financing arrangements being used by European and Soviet helicopter salesmen."

Whether one is for or against the development of an American SST, the fact of its rejection marked a retreat from leadership in air power. The U.S.S.R. now appears willing and able to assume the role of air superiority. What this means to the U.S. is anybody's guess.

"PATRIOTISM IS GOOD FOR THE SOUL AND FOR THE COUNTRY."

The February issue of the Reader's Digest included a small, detachable decal of the American flag, with the suggestion that readers display it in a window of their car. "Let us fly this flag proudly," said the brief editorial feature,"to show that we know what a privilege it is to be an American."

Stick-on flags were even then not uncommon in cars across the country, but the offer of additional flag decals seemed to touch a responsive chord deep in the national psyche. As we go to press, 89,770 separate orders have been received for 32,145,411 flag decals. More than 400 radio stations made favorable mention of the project, and some 300 newspapers treated it in news stories, editorials and columns. Equally heartening have been the spontaneous letters from individual readers. A brief sampling:

From Maryland——"I was one of the complacent, faceless Americans who do not wave the flag. Your feature has reminded me just how much we may lose if we don't stand up to be counted."

From Indiana——"The flag of our nation stands for everything that I hold dear. It represents life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness for all citizens. I fly my flag proudly. Thank you."

From Pennsylvania——"Funny how that little flag of yours has made me a friend of countless other unknown beings."

From a staff sergeant in Vietnam——"It helps me to know that the flag is being displayed on car windows back home."

From a Lieutenant Colonel, U. S. Army——"Recently I had the pleasure of escorting 120 Brazilian army officers on a tour of various U. S . cities—Throughout the tour we were greeted by a profusion of American flags, particularly on windows of cars. This had a profound effect on the Brazilian officers. News reports had led them to believe we were a land torn by distant dissent and protest. In a short time they began to say, 'Our reports are not true. Americans are proud of their country'...I merely want to say thank you for making my job easier and——even more—— thank you for reminding me that I, too, am proud to be an American."

That Was a Lady

THE CELEBRATED prosecuting attorney was determined to defame the character of the defendent. He called the latter to the stand and asked:

"Will you answer a few straight questions as directly as possible for me?"

The defendant agreed.

"Well, Mr. Z," the prosecutor went on, "is there a woman living with you who is generally known as Mrs. Z?"

"There is."

"And you support her?"

"Yes."

"Have you ever been legally married to her?"

"No, I haven't"

As the jurors scowled disapprovingly, the prosecutor announced:

"That's all, Mr. Z."

The defense counsel leaped to his feet.

"Just a moment, Mr. Z. Is the woman in question your mother?"

"She is."

Fish in Aquarium Help Assure Pure Water in Factory

A new, two-million dollar waste treatment plant of Hoffman-LaRoche, Inc., of Nutley, New Jersey, features a large aquarium where fish will live and breed in water receiving a continuous sample of treated waste, and serve as an exceedingly sensitive biological monitoring system.

This is but a part of the $4 million program assuring the quality of air and water. For example, according to V. D. Mattia, M. D., President and Chief Executive Officer, the 500-acre complex in Velvidere has a waste treatment facility that 98 per cent of BOD [biological oxygen demand] is removed from waste. The Delaware River Basin Commission requires 85 per cent.

Round-the-clock vigilance with sensitive, sophisticated electronic equipment monitors the quality of fumes, steam water and other effluents, the company spokesman said. He added, "Should any malfunction threaten, an alarm immediately alerts one of the operators who are in constant attendance; thus prompt action is taken before any problem arises."

NEVER SEEK THE UNEARNED

In the early days of our country, there lived a strange type of people. These people lived in New England and their way of life was different from ours today.

These early settlers were hardy individuals who had to live from day to day through their own merits, without help from the government and, of course, without modern conveniences. These conditions helped develop many fine characteristics within these early settlers. They, naturally, had to be brave, diligent and resourceful. But, it seems their foremost quality was that of independence.

Their independence was so strong, in some cases, that they wouldn't accept help from anyone. If you wanted to help one of your neighbors, you might ask him if he minded if you helped him.

How different from today! Today, we find a large number of people who will ask others for help in the most insignificant matters. A smaller, but sizable number of people will demand that you help them with money or anything else. Many people have their hands out for any and all kinds of government aid. There are even unions set up to secure more welfare for their members.

The people who ask for handouts for no services rendered are asking for the unearned, the undeserved. But there is still a vast number of our people who would die before they'd go on welfare. These are the people who must pull us through, the spiritual descendants of the early New England settlers. We must try to emulate their independence and never seek the unearned. HLH

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Rattling Skeletons:
Meany's Labor Bloc Plans To Make
McGovern's Defeat a Personal Objective

WASHINGTON -- There's one specialist here who can whip up an instant lifetime chronicle of George McGovern, including a detailed inventory of all the skeletons in the Candidate's personal closet -- and that's labor's generalissimo, George Meany. But there's little doubt in labor's highest circles that the curmudgeon is ready to leave what he believes to be the Candidate's personal skeletons to continue to gather dust while he (Meany) rattles the political bones in public.

Meany may or may not have something. The AFL-CIO president still all powerful--always plays things close to his ample and beloved vests. However, at this moment one thing is certain. He plans to make this election campaign a personal issue between himself and the Dakotan. He intends to issue an "expanded White Paper" against McGovern in late September or early October.

It all depends on how soon McGovern's strategists make him the target. It they don't -- he'll unleash the White Paper anyway -- attacking the Democratic candidate on all fronts from McGovern's position on Israel to isolation, from amnesty and abortion to street action. Those who have seen Meany's notes say he plans to be tough-but impersonal. That is, "as impersonal as they will be with him."

This report on the Meany — McGovern feud is not merely the chronicling of a Presidential campaign no matter how rough it gets, and, as they say in the movement, brother it will get rough. Meany is at the throttle of a swift express train in history and he intends to switch tracks with full Amtrak speed. He's putting all his power and reputation and career -- even at 78 still viable -- on the line.

If there is a President George McGovern, there will not be a President George Meany for very long. If the labor establishment doesn't smash McGovern, the Democrat, once in the White House, no doubt will have to wipe out the labor establishment's power. If McGovern would not, the young men and women would.

Thus Meany, at 79, would have to reassess his role at the AFL-CIO's 1973 convention. He would not, doughty though he is, it seems to insiders, want to spend the next four years battling the White House after he had made the Presidential election a personal issue.

So the dialectics have it that he must therefore throw in with Richard Nixon, True, they job together politically and Meany pulls his shots on the golf course enough not to beat the President of the U.S. too badly. There's a very fundamental point here if it is understood that what Meany wants above all else is to preserve the labor movement as he knows it. Not a movement of the left, not a movement of the middle class, not a movement of ideological marijuana, not one shifting towards the Social Democracy of his foreign friends who he needles so much --but a movement of highly paid skilled craftsmen who are middle-town America.

Meany has decided this cannot develop under the new politics, the new McGovernism. He and most of the truly powerful union chiefs around him have decided that -- at this moment anyway -- they can only survive as a force if Richard Nixon is President.

They are under assault by the black communities, the campus bread intellectual youth who see them as the top crust of the establishment, by what they call the "lettuce legions," for example. They snorted during the Democratic convention over the orgiastic uproar when Ted Kennedy (with an aside on what a great line he got off) drew thunderous ovations when he said "fellow lettuce boycotters." The delegates, who gave the AFL—CIO bloc even shorter shrift than was given the Democratic establishment, little knew that it was Meany, and some 2.5 million labor dollars, which had made possible not only Cesar Chavez and the United Farm Workers Union but the famed boycott itself.

And just as Meany and his colleagues have moved towards the Republican party, the Grand Old Party, goaded by Dick Nixon, moved towards the labor establishment. Thus it was on the President's directive that conservatives were dispatched to Miami Beach to contact other leading conservatives on the Republican convention platform committee to block proposals for the labor restrictions by Texas' Sen. Tower and what is known as the Labor Law Reform Group.

Labor law reform means everything from a conservative National Labor Relations Board and labor courts to compulsory arbitration, the elimination of the labor weapon known as coordinated bargaining, etc.

Thus Mr. Nixon had his party move towards a new majority party by moving closer to a new constituency -- namely the bulk of the labor movement as personalized by that cartoonists' delight -- Meany. Thus the Grand Old Party will develop a new base -- under the direction of the President and the most privy of privy councillors, Charles "Chuck" Colson.

Point now is, will the old party change the new constituents or vice versa? Will the common "enemy" -- McGovern in '76 -- unite the Republican conservatives with labor's establishment, or will the new men of labor -- in Meany's image -- remake the Party?

These are historic trains. The winning of an election is a real smashing story. But the full meaning of such a victory is the real story-- in peace and war, on the land, in the factories. A Nixon victory could mean 12 years of Republicanism --most of it under Ted Agnew. A McGovern victory would mean a fire sale of establishments.

So Meany has decided to rattle some skeletons.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON -- To spare Alabama's Gov. George Wallace from the embarrassment of having his name dragged through a long trial, Attorney General Richard Kleindienst personally intervened last week to stop the prosecution of the ex-commandant of the Alabama Air National Guard.

Major General Reid Doster, the former guard commander, has been charged by a federal grand jury with squeezing illegal political donations out of guard officers. The indictment said he had turned over $1,700 of the illegally raised money to the 1970 gubernatorial campaign of George Wallace, whom Doster has called his "personal friend."

By the time the case was scheduled to be tried last week, federal prosecutor Ira Dement had lined up 40 witnesses to testify. The trail was expected to last weeks.

But on the day the trial was to begin, Dement suddenly dropped the charges. Doster agreed, in return, to resign his commission. Three other defendants, subordinates of Doster, were let off scot free.

We have now learned that the decision to call off the trial was made personally by Kleindienst. When my reporter Mark McIntyre demanded to know why the charges were dropped, a Justice Department spokesman blurted: "Because Governor Wallace was involved."

It wasn't the first time that the Nixon Administration suppressed a criminal action embarrassing to Wallace.

WALLACE PAYOFFS

Our stories four years ago about Wallace's political payoff system led to an investigation by the Internal Revenue Service. In a confidential summary of the case made available to us, the IRS charged that the Wallace law firm, then operated by George and his brother Gerald, has been used as a conduit for kickbacks from state contractors.

The IRS also concluded that Gerald Wallace had failed to report the full income that came to him through the firm in 1967 and 1968. His taxable income for the two years was given as $175,924.

Yet the federal tax case against Gerald Wallace was suddenly abandoned after a private conference between President Nixon and Governor Wallace last year aboard the presidential plane. Not long afterward, George Wallace announced his candidacy for President as a Democrat.

White House aides, discussing the political outlook with us later, said they had assurances Wallace would not run as an independent no matter what the outcome of the Democratic convention. They regarded this as a significant advantage for the President particularly in case of a close-fought election.

For in 1968, Wallace's third-party candidacy prevented Richard Nixon from carrying southern states that would clearly have chosen him over Hubert Humphrey had Wallace not been in the race.

Again this year, Wallace as a third-party candidate might have threatened the President's chances of winning the deep South and several border states.

Whether or not Nixon and Wallace actually made a deal aboard the presidential plane -- no embarrassing prosecutions in return for Wallace's promise not to run as an independent -- the results have been the same.

Footnote: General Doster told us he raised the money for Wallace on orders from Wallace's finance coordinator, Jimmy Faulkner. "I passed the hat because we had been asked to get up the money," Doster said. Faulkner admits only that he asked Doster for a " personal contribution." Both versions would have been embarassing to Wallace if the case had been tried. Wallace and Kleindienst refused to comment.

LAND MISUSE?

About a century ago, Congress turned over to the nation's railroads 150 Million acres of land, almost eight per cent of the total land in the country.

The condition was that the railroads were to sell of the land to small farmers and homesteaders finance the construction of new rail lines heading west.

If the new lines were not finished within a reasonable period, Congress ordered that the grants be forfeited and the land again become public property.

The Interior Department is now investigating charges that the Southern Pacific Railroad is still holding on to millions of acres of this land illegally.

The land, in Nevada and California, is allegedly being exploited for its minerals and developed for commercial and residential use. . If the charges are true, the illegal use of this land contributed significantly toward the $27 million which Southern Pacific made from its real estate holdings last year.

The charge was brought to the department's attention by the National Coalition for Land Reform and the California Coalition of Seasonal and Migrant Farm Workers.

They filed an administrative complaint with Interior Secretary Rogers Morton in June asking for an investigation. So far, they have received nothing but an acknowledgement that the request had been received.

A spokesman for the Bureau of Land Management told us, however, that the bureau had already begun looking into the matter. The Southern Pacific, of course, contends the land is no longer subject to the original grant requirements.

Pentagon Trying To End Draft Six Months Early

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon is aiming to stop draft inductions by December, about six months ahead of President Nixon's deadline for ending military conscription.

"Every effort will be made to minimize draft calls, if not avoid them entirely, between January and July, 1973, when the current induction authority expires," Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird pledged in a report to President Nixon.

The 51-page report was distributed by the California White House and the Pentagon Monday as Nixon announced in San clemente he will make good on a 1968 campaign promise to end the draft and rely entirely on volunteers to fill the armed forces.

His stated goal is July 1 of next year but Laird's report showed a zero draft may be reached half a year early.

Neither Nixon or Laird linked announcement of the report with the current presidential election but Laird agreed the statement could reap large benefits from the youth vote this November.

The Pentagon already this year has slashed planned inductions to a maximum of 50,000 young men—the lowest total in ten years and about 330,000 below the Vietnam war crest in 1966. Laird's report said "The dramatic decline in draft calls has been made possible by substantially reducing the size of the active force and by attracting more voluntary enlistees to military service."

U.S. military manpower now stands at slightly more than 2.3 million men. This is 1.2 million below the Vietnam war peak.

Both the President and Laird stressed achievement of the all volunteer force will require congressional enactment of a series of bills broadening authority to pay enlistment and re-enlistment bonuses for military skills in both the regular forces and the national guard and reserve, and bonus incentives designed to attract doctors to military careers.

The Army and Marine Corps have been trying a $1,500 enlistment bonus for men signing up for four-year hitches in ground combat units.

Laird reported increasing success with this pilot bonus plan. The Army, which was having trouble getting volunteers for the infantry, artillery and armor, signed up 5,400 men in June—about 400 more than average monthly needs.

Decide Against Rate Hike

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Postal Service says it won't be necessary to boost first class postal rates for the time being because of the attrition of postal service personnel.

Postmaster Gen. E. T. (Ted) Klassen Monday said an increase to raise $450 million was considered, with 85 per cent of the additional funds to be used for salaries.

But he said enough employes have quit or retired to make the increase unnecessary.

However, Klassen said it would be "foolhardy" to promise there would not be an increase at all next year. He said negotiations on new labor contracts are scheduled in July, and union leaders have proposed increasing the minimum first class postage rate to 10 cents to raise more revenue.

DON CAMPBELL, forester with the Southern Forest Insitute, Atlanta, Ga.; presents the Certification and an identifying sign for the Camp Lewallen tree farm acreage to Jerry Beckner, Scout Executive for Southeast Missouri Council, Boy Scouts of America.

Scout Camp Certified In Tree Farm System

600 acres of woodlands owned by the Southeast Missouri Council, Boy Scouts of America, were enrolled today in the American Tree Farm System, a nationwide program of good forest-management which promotes the conservation and wise use of our nation's renewable timber resources.

"This Boy Scout- owned property we have recognized as an official Tree Farm today is not only growing repeated crops of wood for our nation's future needs, it is also providing improved wildlife habitat, protecting our watersheds, improving the quality of the environment, and providing recreational and educational opportunities for every Boy Scout in our local Council," according to Don Campbell, Forester with the Southern Forest Institute, Atlanta, Georgia.

"Forestry" and "Forest Management" are specific subjects for current merit badges in the Boy Scouts of America Merit Achievement Program. "Wildlife Management", "Conservation of Natural Resources", "Nature Study", and other scout merit badges reward accomplishments of Cubs, Scouts, and Explorers in learning about forests and the forest environment. BSA campgrounds and other Scout properties provide scouts with opportunities to practice their forestry skills.

To qualify for the American Tree Farm System, forest land must be privately owned; managed for the growth and harvest of repeated crops of timber; and protected from the threat of wildfire, insect and disease damage, and destructive grazing. Tree Farm management plans should include provisions for regeneration of new trees.

"Your fellow Tree Farmers throughout our country commend you on the outstanding efforts of your SOAR (Save Our American Resources) conservation program to provide the maximum benefits for the most people," according to Mr. Campbell.

"By joining the American Tree Farm System, the scouts and scout advisors of Southeast Missouri are sharing the conservation achievements of Tree Farmers throughout the nation who are helping meet our future demands for wood by managing their land to grow one of Nature's most useful and versatile renewable resources, trees," Mr. Campbell concluded.

Major Fire Damages Tan-Tar-A

OSAGE BEACH, Mo. (AP) — Fire early today damaged 10 guest rooms in the main lodge of Tan-Tar-A, a resort at the southwest edge of the main arm of the Lake of the Ozarks.

The fire also resulted in extensive water damage to additional rooms and to the threelevel restaraunt section of the lodge.

A woman guest suffered a broken ankle while evacuating the building and a fireman was treated for burns. No other injuries were reported.

Firemen from Osage Beach, Camdenton, Lake Ozark and Eldon battled the blaze, which broke out around 5 a.m. and was brought under control around 7 a.m.

There was no immediate damage estimate.

Firemen speculated the blaze may have started in a gas air conditioner in the top level of the eight-level section of the lodge.

Tan-Tar-A contains accommodations for 1,100 guests, but was not completely filled. Occupants of damaged rooms were relocated in other sections of the lodge.

The main lodge of the resort, regarded as one of the largest and most luxurious in Missouri, houses the lobby, registration desk, bowling alley, cocktail lounges, restaraunts and a few guest rooms.

Tan-Tar-A officials said the lodge was open for business and that restaraunt were serving breakfast, although floors were covered with water.

Firemen credited the lodge's sprinkler system with preventing the blaze from spreading.

Facilities at the resort, which is owned by Burton Duenke, St. Louis businessman, include indoor and outdoor swimming pools, Tennis courts, golf course and winter ski areas and ice skating rink.

Women Not Told

Used To Test Pregancy Drug; Daughters Could Get Vaginal Cancer

CHICAGO (AP) — A synthetic female hormone — recently associated with cancer — was given to 840 pregnant women in 1950-52 as part of a clinical experiment of which they were unaware.

The hormone is diethylstilbestrol, also called DES or stilbestrol.

In wholly unconnected tests two decades later, three Boston researchers found "a highly significant association" between DES and vaginal cancer among seven young girls whose mothers took the drug during their pregnancies. One girl died.

On Aug. 2, the Food and Drug Administration banned all production of DES for use in animal feeds because it turned up in the tissue of animals slaughtered for food. Researchers had also reported that DES caused cancer in some experimental animals.

At the time of the Chicago experiment, physicians had no reason to suspect DES of cancer-causing potential in the patients' children.

Dr. Charles McCartney, who participated in the experiment, said its purpose was to determine whether DES was really helpful in preventing complications of pregnancy, as was widely believed then. The answer from the experiment was negative, he said.

Record-keeping on the women involved now makes it possible to locate many of them, and any daughters who might be at risk. The daughters could have frequent checkups to detect any early symptoms of trouble. Or the followup could help determine whether such use of DES actually does create a cancer risk, the physician said.

The study was conducted at the University of Chicago's Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology among patients at Chicago's Lying-in Hospital from Sept. 28, 1950, through Nov. 20, 1952.

As each woman registered at the hospital's prenatal clinic during that period, she was automatically entered into the experiment.

There were 2,162 in all, but the group was subsequently reduced to 1,646. Of these, 840 were given DES. The others received placebos, or tablets containing no drugs.

Not even clinicians who attended the women knew which tables had DES because they were concealed in a code.

Describing the experiment at the time, the researchers said it was designed so "(1) that patients and staff should have no knowledge of the medication on trial; (2) that a similar group of patients should receive placebo medication which is not discernible from the medication on trial; and (3) that the two groups of patients must be treated simultaneously and as nearly alike as possible."

The chief author of the report was the late Dr. William J. Dieckmann, chairman of the Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology as well as chief of staff of the hospital. He died in 1957.

Dr. McCartney, who participated in the experiment, said Dr. Dieckmann urged the study because "thousands of women were taking stilbestrol and a great deal was written about the increased salvage rate in high-risk pregnancies, particularly with patients with diabetes and those with threatened abortions.

"Dr. Dieckmann was skeptical of the reports and designed an experiment to test the hypothesis. Our question was, 'Does it (DES) do any good?' Our answer was, 'No.'"

Dr. McCartney said the experiment was conducted in an era in which there was "no such thing as informed consent."

"At the time of the experiment, there was nothing known about the malignancy potential of this material," he said. "Indeed, this still has to be determined."

The job of tracking down the women involved in the experiment and their children has fallen to Dr. Frederick P. Zuspan, chairman of the Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology and chief of staff at Chicago Lying-in. Zuspan did not take part in the experiment.

Officials at Chicago Lying-in declined to answer questions about the experiment and directed all inquiries to Zuspan.

"I can answer no questions regarding the study or plans for a follow-up," Zuspan said.

However, a follow-up is in the works. A Chicago mother who was involved in the experiment said:

"I first learned of it when I received a letter from the university dated Aug. 8, 1972. I had never been told I was part of an experiment."

She does not know whether she received DES or the blank tablets.

Her daughter, who will be 21 in October, has had only one serious illness and that resulted from a ruptured appendix.

It was learned 1,600 letters had been sent over Zuspan's signature. The letter says:

"Dr. William Dieckmann and others conducted a study on the use of diethylstilbestrol (the estrogen female hormone) during pregnancy. This study was conducted while you were a patient in the Outpatient Department of Chicago Lying-in Hospital. Our records indicate that you participated in this important study.

"We are now routinely following up all offspring of participants. It would be greatly appreciated if you would give us your daughter's present address so that we may contact her ..."

The first indication there might be some association between DES-treated mothers and the occurrence of vaginal cancer in their daughters was contained in a report April 22, 1971, in the New England Journal of Medicine.

Drs. Arthur Herbst, Howard Ulfelder and David Poskanzer, working at Vincent Memorial Hospital, were mystified by seven cases of vaginal cancer which came to the hospital's attention during the period 196669. The patients' ages ranged from 15 to 22. This was considered rare. In the detective work that followed, the investigators sought a variety of explanations and discovered that in each case, the mother had been treated with DES during pregnancy.

The scientists then reported:

"There is a highly significant association between the treatment of the mothers with estrogen diethylstilbestrol during pregnancy and the subsequent development of adenocarcinoma of the vagina in their daughters."

They said, "The time of birth of these patients (1946 to 1951) coincides with the beginning of widespread use of estrogens in support of high-risk pregnancy....

"Although the chance of development of these tumors appears to be very small, the results of this study suggest that it is unwise to administer stilbestrol to women early in pregnancy."

The women who participated in the Chicago experiment were given doses of DES early in pregnancy and the dosage was increased regularly.

Diethylstilbestrol is still in use in a variety of brand name drugs. It is prescribed primarily for cancer of the prostate in men, and for menopausal symptoms in women, and in some cases for treatment of breast cancer in women. In some drugs it is combined with male hormones.

Women involved in the Chicago research were not the only ones being given DES during that period.

In 1951, two Boston obstetrician-gynecologists, Drs. O. W. Smith and G. van S. Smith, had recommended that increasing doses of diethylstilbestrol be routinely administered to all women during pregnancy to prevent or decrease hazards of late complications for mothers and babies.

It was this and other recommendations for DES that prompted Dieckmann's project.

U.N. Group Recommends Puerto Rican Freedom

SAN JUAN (AP) — The resolution by a U.N. committee that declared Puerto Rico has a right to independence marks the first major victory in a campaign by leftist separatists seeking abroad the support that has long eluded them at home.

Two separatist parties, the Puerto Rican independence Party and the Marxist-Castroist Puerto Rican Socialist Party, have found an eager ally in Cuba, always ready to discredit the the United States. They have also sent delegations to plead their case before the Marxist government of Chile and several Latin American legislators.

The separatists — known here as "independentistas — have never polled a substantial share of the vote. In the 1968 elections they fell short of 4 per cent. But that may be misleading because many who yearn for sovereignty cast their ballots for other parties because of economic or traditional reasons.

Ann Landers

Mom Refuses!

Ann Landers: I am not calling you "dear" because you are not dear to me. I think it was just rotten of you to bum-rap motorcycles. I was going to get one for my 16th birthday until you stuck your ugly nose into it. Now it's off. Any fool knows that a motorcycle is just as safe as a bike, which I've been riding since I was ten years old without an accident. Isn't it about time you retired? -- Mad In Yonkers

Dear Mad Yonk:Thanks for the love note. Here's another opinion:

Dear Ann Landers: Bless you for that well-timed column on the dangers of motorcycles. The following day the Monroe, Mich. Evening News printed a story which reported ten motorcycle fatalities over the weekend – nine were riding motorcycles or were passengers on a cycle. The tenth was a seven -year- old girl who was struck by one. -- N.W.of M.

Dear N. W.: Thanks for letting me know. Here's another:

Dear Ann: I don't want to be a killjoy, but there must be some way of taming the users of motorcycles. They are a menace not only to their riders but to everyone else on the highways. I shudder to see the numbers increase. --- J. H. B. (Boston)

Dear J. H. B.: Right you are. I welcome suggestions.

Dear Ann: As a member of the Medical profession I commend you for answering "NO" to the mother who asked whether to allow her daughter to ride with her boyfriend on a motorcycle.

Almost every physician has worked in a hospital emergency room at some time during his career. There he sees the motorcycle riders --- good ones, bad ones, cautious ones, careless ones, and quite frequently he sees the rider who was not at fault, but is nevertheless, maimed for life, or dead. I believe most physicians would agree that this sport is comparable to playing Russian roulette.

If only one tenth of the parents who read your column will take it to heart, you will have prevented thousands of injuries and preserved hundreds of young lives. --- Tampa M.D.

Dear Tampa: One of your colleagues, a fine dermatologist in San Francisco, did not write. He is still too heartsick to think about motorcycles. His only son, a brilliant young teenager, was killed on one two years ago. Thank you all for writing.

Dear Ann Landers: This is what happened the other evening and I want your opinion. A mother and her two small children were at the supper table. Guests were present. The younger child asked, "Mommy, can I have the strawberries on your shortcake? I love them so much." The mother replied, "No. I love them too, and I am going to eat them myself."

The child was crushed. I felt so sorry for him.

What do you think about such a mother? --- Chicago

Dear Chic: I think we need more mothers like that. Too many kids today have the idea they should have everything they see. AS often as not they don't even want what they ask for.

Parents who cater to the whims of their children because they believe it's the way to make kids happy -- or worse yet, who enjoy "sacrificing for the kids" -- learn later that they did the youngsters no favors. The selfish adults in our midst are those kids of yore who never learned how to give -- only to receive.

Is alcoholism ruining your life? Know the danger signals and what to do. Read the booklet, "Alcoholism -- Hope and Help," by Ann Landers. Enclose 35 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to this newspaper.

The Prayer from the Upper Room

No greater joy can I have than this, to hear that my children follow the truth. (III John 4, RSV)

The Case Of The Ghostly Brother-in-law

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

As an undertaker, Grover's disposition was even more rigid than his recently departed customers. Consequently, when the Widow Brown telephoned to say she would have to miss a payment on her husband's funeral, Grover promptly donned his black stovepipe hat and went to see her.

The only person he found at home, however, was the Widow Brown's sister Emma who had recently arrived from out of town.

After pounding his palm for payment to no avail, Grover retreated to his hearse parked outside. A few moments later he reappeared with the defunct body of Mr. Brown, which he deposited in an upright position on the living room couch. Then in a huff, he departed again.

The sudden reappearance of her deceased brother-in-law, as it developed, sitting on the living-room couch, proved more than poor Emma could take. And passing out as if she were the one who was dead, she later sued Grover for having assaulted her.

"He assaulted me with the lifeless body of my brother-in-law," she told the judge. "Had he actually thrown his corpse at me, it could not have frightened me more."

"There was no reason to be frightened," was the undertaker's answer. "The fact is, a girl's probably a lot safer with a dead man than a live one. After all, a corpse can't hurt anyone."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make Grover pay for assaulted frightened Emma?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that there can be no assault without a threat to do physical harm. In this case, concluded the judge, Grover in no way threatened Emma with physical injury. (Based upor a 1923 Michigan Supreme Court Decision)

Spitz Eyes Seven Golds

MUNICH (AP) — "I feel great!" Mark Spitz exulted. "I did my best tonight, I'll do my best tomorrow and the day after that—and the day after that."

If he does, the handsome, mustachioed California swimmer will be well on his way to garnering an unheard-of seven Olympic gold medals—and on his way to obliterating the memories of Mexico City.

He brought the United States its first two golds in the 20th Summer Games Monday, rocketing to an astounding triumph in the 200-meter men's butterfly, then anchoring the victorious 400-meter relay team.

It was also a day in which Air Force Capt. Micki King of Hermosa Beach, Calif., dazzled her way to a gold medal in the three-meter springboard diving, Vic Auer of North Hollywood, Calif., came within an eyelash of a gold in small bore riflery and the young Yank basketball team continued its winning ways.

Spitz can make it three in a row tonight with a victory in the 200-meter freestyle final. The women, meanwhile, still seeking to get out of the wake of Australian sensation Shane Gould, will be out to gain a gold in the 200-meter breaststroke.

"I remembered what happened in Mexico," said Spitz, who had brashly predicted he would personally win five golds, only to fail in all five attempts, winding up merely as one member of two winning relay teams in those games four years ago.

"I was a little nervous because of that," he said, recalling his thoughts as he stood on the starting block prior to the butterfly.

A scant two minutes later—a world record 2:00.70, to be exact—the 22-year-old Indiana University pre-dental graduate from Carmichael, Calif., had his first gold, leading a 1-2-3 sweep.

Gary Hall of Garden Grove, Calif., a surprisingly distant fifth in the early going, came on with a rush to win the silver medal, barely nosing out Robin Backhaus of Redlands, Calif.

Minutes after that, Spitz was back in the water, following Dave Edgar of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., John Murphy of Hinsdale, Ill., and Jerry Heidehreich of Dallas, the first three swimmers in the relay.

Again he churned along and again a world record was broken. This time the final clocking was 3:26.42, more than three full seconds ahead of the silver-winning Russian team and six in front of third-place East Germany.

"I've been diving for 18 years," said Miss King. "That's longer than the girl who came in second has been living."

Miss King, a 28-year-old Pontiac, Mich., native, virtually waltzed to her gold medal, beating 17-year-old Swedish high school student Ulrika Knape by almost 16 points. East Germany's Marina Janicke was third, about three points further back.

Auer, a 35-year-old technical and television writer, had a gold for nearly two hours. Then along came 26-year-old North Korean infantryman Li-Ho-jun to take it away from him.

"Naturally I was disappointed," said Auer, who had fired a world and Olympic record-tying 598 points out of a possible 600, only to have Li break them both with a 599 score. "For two hours I thought I won it and now it's a second place.

"But I'm still pleased," Auer added. "I think I represented my country well ... This is the greatest event in my life."

Miss Gould, the 15-year-old Aussie schoolgirl, put her fourth world record on the books in swimming to a gold in the women's 200-meter individual relay.

"Now I'm looking forward to the freestyles," she said, clutching her stuffed toy kangaroo after clocking 2:23.07, a time that broke a four-year mark set by America's Claudia Kolb.

Miss Gould beat East Germany's Kornelia Ender by about half a second, with Lynn Vidali of San Francisco, finishing less than a tenth of a second further back to take the bronze.

"It took three games for us to become a team in Mexico City, and it probably will be the same this time," U.S. Coach Hank Iba said of his young basketball team.

If that's the case, they'll be a team tonight—and they'll have to be in order to defeat Cuba, which beat the Yanks in last year's Pan-American Games.

The Americans, stretching their unbeaten Olympic record to 57 games, recorded their second Munich victory by beating Australia 81-55.

Sloppy ball-handling by the U.S. team enabled the Aussies to maintain a 19-19 tie in the opening minutes. Then the Yanks clamped on a zone defense and ran away to a 56-24 halftime lead.

Ed Ratleff of Long Beach, Calif., scored 18 points and Jim Brewer of Maywood, Ill., grabbed 18 rebounds to lead the Yanks.

The only other American medalist Monday was a surprising one, as 20-year-old Jamie McEwan of Silver Spring, Md., picked up the bronze in the Canadian singles segment of the canoe slalom.

He had been in eighth place after the first of his two runs in the sport all but owned by Europeans. East Germans won both the Canadian and men's kayak singles.

The American women gymnasts finished fourth as Russia won its first gold of the Games and Hungary's Imre Foeldi won the bantamweight weightlifting competition. The U.S. water polo team defeated Cuba 7-6 as Bruce Bradley of Long Beach, Calif., scored three goals and Russell Webb of Hermosa Beach, Calif., added two.

Sports Briefs

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — The field was narrowed to 16 in the championship flight Monday in the World Seniors Golf Tourney at Broomoor Country Club, with defending champion Jude Poynter of Beverly Hills, Calif., and leading qualifier Howard Everitt of Tequesta, Fla., both victorious.

Poynter defeated Raymond Palmer of Grosse Ile, Mich., 2 and 1 and Everitt downed Finn Sorvik of Sweden 4 and 3.

BOSTON (AP) — Veteran forward Mike Walton reportedly has signed a new longterm contract with the Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League.

Walton was working on a two-year contract running through the ,1972-73 season. However, he renegotiated the agreement. The new contract reportedly fixes his salary for the first year. His pay will be negotiable after that.

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — Eddie Westfall, a star forward for the Boston Bruins for many years, has signed a three-year contract with the New York Islanders, a National Hockey League expansion club.

Westfall had one season to go on his old contract with the Bruins. Acquired by the Islanders in the expansion draft last June, he negotiated a new agreement. Terms were not disclosed.

Durham Pitches

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The San Francisco Giants scored twice without a hit, but the occasion was the biggest in baseball for slim St. Louis Cardinals rookie Dan Durham Monday night.

Durham, 23 and two years out of college, yielded only three singles in pitching the Cards to a 4-2 victory.

Authoring his first complete game, the former Western Kentucky star fanned eight to tie his high in seven starts and walked three in boosting his record to 2-6.

"I'd say this had to be more satisfying than the first one," said Durham, who stopped the Giants 3-1 in San Francisco with relief help Aug. 18.

"I was able to spot the ball better, and I was stronger. In the first inning I was nervous. I finally found my rhythm and was able to hit on the outside. The key to the victory was just mixing it up."

While still nervous, Durham walked Bobby Bonds leading off the game and fell quickly behind as Bonds went to second on a wild pitch and came around on two ground balls.

The 6-foot blond was touched for singles by Dave Rader and Dave Kingman leading off the second inning but worked out of the jam and afterward yielded only a single to Rader in the fourth.

Lou Brock, meanwhile, quickly earned a tie for St. Louis with his third homer leading off the first inning against Giants vet Juan Marichal, 5-15.

Marichal walked Bernie Carbo and Joe Torre with one out in the same inning, and Luis Melendez made it 3-1 with a double over third base.

Carbo's double to left-center and Ted Simmons' single made it 4-1 in the third, a margin that looked final until Rader led off the ninth with a sinking line drive to right field.

Carbo charged the drive but overran it and looked up as the ball sailed past his glove and rolled to the wall. Rader circled the bases on what was ruled a four-base error.

"I'd have to admit I'm surprised to be up here but pleased," said Durham, who was called up from Tulsa July 13 following loss of starter Scipio Spinks.

"I came out of Class A ball last year," he added. "That's quite a jump to Triple A, and I was really getting adjusted. But I think I do have the ability to compete."

Allen Wants Winner

BOSTON (AP) — Veteran slugger Dick Allen is bidding to become the first player in Chicago White sox history to win the triple crown, but it's structly a secondary objective for him.

"Triple crown, hell—the only thing I'm interested in is the club winning 95 games, which should be enough to win our division," Allen said Monday night before the White Sox beat the Red Sox 6-4 in a nationally televised baseball game.

The last player to win the Triple Crown was the Red Sox' Carl Yastrzemski in 1967, one year after Frank Robinson did it with Baltimore. Mickey Mantle performed the feat with the New York Yankees in 1956. Their teams won the AL pennant in those years.

"If I win the Triple Crown and we don't win, the Triple Crown will mean nothing," he added.

Allen played for Philadelphia, St. Louis and Los Angeles in the National League before being acquired by the White Sox after the 1971 season. He is leading the American League in batting (.317), homers (32) and runs batted in (92).

He appears a shoo-in to win the homer and RBI titles, but is locked in a dogfight for the batting championship.

"There are a lot of things more important than average," he said while foregoing batting practice in his customary fashion. "If I go 0-for-4 in a game, but I move two men up and they score and we win 2-0, I feel that's as important as getting hits.

"Too many ballplayers think only of themselves and their averages. A batting average is fine only if it produces runs. That's what the game is—getting more runs than the other guy."

Freshman Moves Up At Okla.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A freshman, Kerry Jackson, moved to the second string quarterback position in Oklahoma's powerful wishbone offense, as Coach Chuck Fairbanks announced a number of position changes Monday.

At Stillwater, Oklahoma State Coach Dave Smith said he was pleased with everything but execution after viewing films of the Cowboys' game-type scrimmage Saturday.

"We have a long way to fo fundamentally, but we're doing some things we can definitely correct," the rookie head coach said. "But for only three days in pads, we're satisfied."

Defending national champion Nebraska whipped through its next-to-last day of double drills Monday, and Coach Bob Devaney said another scrimmage might be held Wednesday.

"I think everyone is getting a little tired of the two-d-days," Devaney said.

He described Saturday's scrimmage as a "hard-hitting affair," but added the players still need work in many areas.

There was happiness at Kansas State when tight end Henry Childs and wide receiver John Tuttle both practiced full speed Monday for the first time this year. Childs had been suffering a groin injury and Tuttle broke a foot during the summer. Coach Vince Gibson spent the session correcting mistakes he noted in Saturday's scrimmage.

Missouri Coach Al Onofrio sent his tigers through a light two-hour practice Monday, and announced that right guard Chris Kirley was the only casualty from Saturday's scrimmage. The 6-4, 228-pound lineman will be out for at least a week.

Kansas Coach Don Fambrough described the Jayhawks' workout Monday as a "very tough practice." But Frambrough said he was pleased to see everyone practicing, even some who sustained minor injuries in Saturday's scrimmage.

The Iowa State Cyclones, meanwhile, resumed two-a-day practices Monday as temperatures soared.

"I was real pleased to see it get hot because we need the conditioning," said Coach Johnny Majors.

"We slowed down some today, but the heat, and the fact that this was only our second day in pads were the reasons for that."

Starting linebacker Ken Caratelli was withheld from contact because of an inflammation of a leg injury he suffered last year in the San Diego State game.

Big Red Have Many New Faces

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals prided themselves in allowing National Football League opponents to pin their quarterbacks for losses only 19 times during the 1971 season.

The only problem was that the Cardinals, a title challenger in 1970, were able to nail other teams' quarterbacks only 20 times themselves and went on to a dismal 4—9—1 season.

"We want to improve our overall defense in terms of getting bigger plays," said Coach Bob Hollway.

"If our offense doesn't move the ball, we must be capable of turning a game in our favor with our defense."

A pass rush, then, looms as the top target for improvement with the Cardinals, although improved receiving and the bolstering of the running rate not far behind.

To fortify the front four, Hollaway has moved nine-season veteran Chuck Walker from end to tackle, where he joins Bob Rowe and Fred Heron, and has given a strong trial to 6-foot-6 rookie Martin Imhof as Walker's replacement at defensive right end.

Ron Yankowski, who started as a rookie last season, should be improved at his defensive left end position and Hollway has a much deeper assortment of linebackers than last year.

Opponents' passing produced more yards against a seasoned Cards defensive secondary in 1971 than in 1970 but scored fewer touchdowns despite numerous injuries, an adjustment to almost exclusively zone assignments and the presence of rookies Larry Willingham and Norm Thompson.

Eight-season veteran Miller Farr is back at left cornerback, Roger Wehrli returns at right corner and 34-year-old Larry Wilson has moved to left safety in place of departed Jerry Stovall to make the secondary the least of Hollway's worries.

Discouraged by dropped passes and a running attack that failed to produce an outside threat in 1971, Hollway traded away power running backs MacArthur Lane and Old Edwards and wide receivers John Gilliam and Dave Williams.

Get Right Diet Thru 4-H "Magic"

SPECIAL--If good nutrition helps build strong, healthy bodies, then some 655,000 young people are taking the challenge seriously.

They are the boys and girls participating in the national 4-H food nutrition program conducted by the Cooperative Extension Service and sponsored by General Foods Corporation.

Food can be fun, the 4-H'ers say. And to prove it, they use a "magic formula" to help them remember the proper amounts of meat, bread and cereals, fruits and vegetables and milk products they need each day. The magic formula is a set of four numbers – 4-4-3-2.

Using the basic four food groups, it reminds the beginning 4-H'er of his daily needs. It suggests at least four servings of breads and cereals; four servings of fruits and vegetables, three servings of milk or milk products and two servings from the meat group. Planning and preparing appetizing meals for themselves, their families and friends, adds fun and interest to the program.

In five units, the young nutrition buffs learn to prepare some of America's favorite dishes, quick and easy meals and foods with an international flavor. And in the fall of 1972, a unit "Teens Entertain" is expected to find welcome participants among older 4-H members as they plan and prepare for entertaining events with menus ranging from snacks to a luau.

The 4-H food nutrition program is supported by members' manuals and leaders' guides produced cooperatively by the Extension Service, General Foods and the National 4-H Service Committee. The books which include recipes, nutrition information, suggestions for buying, preparing and serving foods are available to those participating in the program.

An added bonus for 4-H members are the awards offered for the 12th year by General Foods Corporation. Four medals of honor are offered county winners. One state winner receives an expense-paid trip to the National 4-H Congress in Chicago, Nov. 26-30, and six national winners receive $700 scholarships at that event.

For information and opportunities in the 4-H food nutrition program, contact the county extension office

Recommend Auto Safety Changes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Transportation Safety Board made a half-dozen safety recommendations today as the result of a 13-vehicle collision in which eight persons were killed and 11 injured in California last year.

The board urged better truck brakes, more secure auto doors, new fuel tank standards, improved no-spark electrical circuits and legal action against motorists who stop on the highway to change a flat tire.

The accident occurred northwest of ventura, Calif., on Aug. 18, 1971. It started with a relatively minor collision between a tractor-semitrailer truck and a flatbed truck.

The tractor truck towing a 40foot refrigerated semitrailer and carrying 740 crates of cabbage plowed into a station wagon in the other traffic lane, killing its five occupants and ramming five other vehicles together. Sparks ignited spilled gasoline and diesel fuel, setting the vehicles on fire.

up to a full Interstate standards and in operation by December of this year; 73 miles are under contract, but not expected to be in operation this year; and 47 miles are now dual lane divided facilities but not up to full Interstate standards. Locations have been approved for the final 129 miles.

The portion of I-55 to be opened represents $29 million in construction costs. The work was divided among three prime contractors. The W. J. Menefee Construction Company of Sedalia constructed a six mile portion from Brewer south to near Route 51 in Perry County at a cost of &7 million. R. B. Potashnick of Cape Girardeau constructed 15.5 miles from Route 51 in Perry County to near Route E in Cape Girardeau County at a cost of $15 million. The Bernard McMenamy Contractors, Inc. built the 7.5 mile section from Route E to Route 61 south of Fruitland at a total cost of $7 million.

This work incorporates the latest safety design features including a 30' safety zone adjacent to the pavement, breakaway sign posts and buried guard rail ends. Also being built, but incomplete at this time, are two rest area facilities south of Route E in Cape Girardeau County.

Try To Prevent Food Shortage

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet authorities have started a crash program to assure enough food for Moscow this winter.

Following a shortfall in the grain harvest, local newspapers confirmed today that searing heat had reduced the potato crop in an area of 40,000 square miles around Moscow.

Potatoes and bread are staples of the Russian diet.

One of the complicating factors was the shortage of storage space in the Moscow area.
